Disclaimer

This audit was performed using artificial intelligence tools to evaluate the presence and strength of classical education principles on school websites. Results are automated, probabilistic in nature, and should be considered indicative rather than definitive. See the full disclaimer in the Appendix more details.

ACCS Member School

Any school that belongs to the Association of Classical Christian Schools ACCS or the Society for Classical Learning SCL is, by definition, recognized as a classical school because both organizations require adherence to the six essential elements defined by the Humanitas Institute. However, a school's website may not clearly reflect its conformity to one or more elements. In such cases, the school may still receive a "Somewhat Classical" rating for those elements. Schools can update their website content at any time to achieve a "Classical" rating for a given element.

Executive Summary

Coram Deo Academy Flower Mound (CDA FM) presents a robust classical Christian program deeply oriented around formation of character, virtue, wisdom, and a biblically framed worldview. Public materials across the CDA FM site repeatedly describe a Christ-centered, classical, and collaborative model in which theology is woven into every subject, chapels and worship spaces are integrated into daily life, and parents are treated as co-educators within a unified learning ecosystem. The school explicitly centers on truth, goodness, and beauty as real and knowable, with explicit emphasis on great books, the trivium (grammar, logic, rhetoric), and the liberal arts as the architectural spine of its curriculum. Pedagogical practices include lower-school singing/chanting that fortifies memory, upper-school Socratic dialogue and rhetoric, and a deliberate, staged progression from Grammar to Logic to Rhetoric. The faculty is portrayed as mentors and a living curriculum, and the school actively fosters parental partnership and community involvement. Taken together, CDA FM aligns very strongly with classical criteria across all six categories.

- Religious and Metaphysical Foundations: Strong Christ-centered, biblical, and liturgical orientation; chapel and biblical worldview embedded in daily life. Evidence includes explicit statements about Christ-centered education, biblical truth woven into academics, chapel, and coram Deo (presence of God).
- Purpose and Goal: Formation of virtue, wisdom, and character with a commitment to truth/beauty, not merely job preparation. Evidence includes statements about training ethical servant leaders, pursuit of truth/beauty, and formation-oriented aims.
- Curriculum: Distinct Grammar/Logic/Rhetoric structure, integration of Great Books-style study, history across the curriculum, and explicit Latin study. Evidence includes Grammar/Logic/Rhetoric progression, Latin in the curriculum, Bible in curriculum, and emphasis on great works/history.
- Pedagogy: Blended on-campus and at-home collaborative model; lower-school singing/chanting and memory-building; upper-school Socratic/dialogue-based seminars; rhetoric training and public speaking opportunities. Evidence includes lower-school chant/memory, Socratic dialogue in Logic, rhetoric/seminars in Rhetoric, and collaborative model with parent involvement.
- Faculty: Faculty described as living curriculum and mentors who know each student; teachers praying for students; collaborative faculty-student relationships. Evidence includes "the living curriculum," teachers who know every student, and prayerful mentorship language.
- Parents & Community: Explicit partnership with families; parents as co-educators; at-home components and resources; campus visits and family involvement. Evidence includes statements about parents as primary educators, collaborative model, at-home learning materials, and a large supportive community.

Abstract assessment across the six classical categories yields a consistent CLASSICAL rating for Coram Deo Academy Flower Mound. The school provides a coherent classical framework that foregrounds virtue, wisdom, transcendental truth, and a liturgical sense of community, while maintaining a clearly defined liberal arts curriculum and a pedagogy rooted in memory (chant/singing), Socratic inquiry, and rhetorical training. The public materials repeatedly map onto the six-element rubric, with explicit alignment to the Classical Christian tradition and the Great Conversation.

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Christ-centered, biblical worldview woven into all subjects; theology integrated into academics; chapel and worship as routine; coram Deo (presence of God) framing the educational approach.

- Public materials describe God's sovereignty and biblical grounding as foundational to curriculum and culture.
- Emphasis on truth, goodness, and beauty as transcendent ideals guiding learning.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive keywords present: Christ-centered, biblical truth, theology woven into academics, chapel, biblical worldview, coram Deo, truth/goodness/beauty, worship, sacred/holy, divine sovereignty, presence of God, Great Books-inspired framing. - Negative keyword indicators: Not detected in public materials.

Why this rating - The materials consistently foreground a theologically integrated curriculum with liturgical/-community practices (chapel, corporate worship, biblical study) and a clear sense of transcendent reality as the basis for learning. This aligns strongly with the Positive Keyword indicators for Religious and Metaphysical Foundations and situates CDA FM firmly within the Classical tradition's metaphysical commitments. The absence of negative indicators supports a CLASSICAL rating.

Citations: Christ-centered content and chapel references.

Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Education framed as formation of virtue and wisdom, not merely job preparation; explicit aim to train ethical servant leaders who shape culture for God's glory. - Emphasis on truth, goodness, and beauty as real, knowable ideals; formation of character, faith, and discernment. - Language around formation of humanity, holistic development, and a mission-driven educational purpose.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive keywords present: virtue, wisdom, formation, character, truth, goodness, beauty, moral imagination, teleology (as implied by pursuing the good), vocation as servant leadership; "God's glory" orientation. - Negative keyword indicators: Not detected.

Why this rating - CDA FM clearly positions education as formation aligned to transcendent aims (virtue, wisdom, beauty) rather than mere credentialing or job preparation. The explicit mission statements and Portrait of a Graduate-type language corroborate a Classical purpose emphasizing formation and human excellence.

Citations: Formation, virtue, and truth/beauty language; "Ethical Servant Leaders" framing.

Element 3: School Curriculum — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Distinct Grammar (PreK–4th), Logic (5th–8th), and Rhetoric (9th–12th) stages, with Latin and exposure to classical languages; emphasis on the trivium and (where applicable) quadrivium; engagement with classical literature and Great Books concepts in practice.

- Bible and biblical worldview integrated into curriculum; "great works" in history, literature, and art; emphasis on literature and memory (storytelling, chant) in grammar and memory-building activities.
- Explicit reference to Great Books, the Great Conversation, and the liberal arts as foundational to learning; Latin is a core component and a graduation requirement in many tracks.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive keywords present: Seven Liberal Arts; grammar, logic, rhetoric; Great Books/Great Conversation; Latin; integration of biblical/wisdom-based content; history integrated across disciplines; wonder/holy curiosity; memory/recitation; sacred tradition. - Negative keyword indicators: Not detected.

Why this rating - The curriculum is organized around the classical trifecta of grammar/logic/rhetoric, supported by a liberal-arts core, Great Books sensibility, and a biblically integrated worldview. The explicit practices around Latin, history/literature across ages, and the Great Books ethos align with the Classical curriculum criteria.

Citations: Grammar/Logic/Rhetoric progression; Latin; Bible-in-Curriculum; Great Books concept.

Element 4: School Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Lower grades feature singing, chanting, rhythm, memory-focused repetition; upper grades emphasize Socratic discussion, seminars, debates, and rhetoric instruction; opportunities for public speaking and refined rhetoric training.

- Collaborative model pairs classroom instruction with at-home reinforcement, guided by parents and teachers; memory, recitation, and disciplined practice are embedded in the pedagogy.
- Some elements of contemplative/restful learning are recognized as appropriate in education (as per classical pedagogy's balance of rigor and rest).

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive keywords present: chanting, memory, recitation, singing, storytelling, Socratic Dialogue, debate/seminars, public speaking, rhetoric, Progymnasmata, contemplation/rest, balance of rigor and rest. - Negative keyword indicators: Not detected.

Why this rating - The school's pedagogy exhibits the classical pedagogy spectrum: grammar-stage musical/memory-based activities; logic-stage Socratic/dialogue-based inquiry; rhetoric-stage public speaking and argumentative training. The collab/home-learning model enhances formation rather than information transfer, aligning with classical pedagogy expectations.

Citations: Grammar emphasis with chant/memory; Socratic dialogue and rhetoric in Logic/Rhetoric; collaborative model.

Element 5: School Faculty — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Teachers described as living curriculum and mentors who model virtue, skill, and knowledge; teachers who know each student; prayerful and relational approach to student growth. - The collaborative model emphasizes teacher-led instruction with parental support, suggesting a teacher-centered yet relational and virtuous living pedagogy.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive keywords present: living curriculum; model teachers; mentors; virtue; knowledge; relationship; teachers who know every student; prayerful mentorship. - Negative keyword indicators: Not detected.

Why this rating - The public materials present teachers as the core of the educational mission, with explicit emphasis on moral formation, mentorship, and relational guidance. This aligns closely with classical faculty expectations and supports a CLASSICAL rating.

Citations: "Living curriculum" and "teachers who know every student" in CDA materials.

Element 6: School Parents and Community — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Explicit partnerships with families; parents as co-educators; at-home resources guiding mastery; admissions and campus events designed to engage families; a large community presence with hundreds of families.

- At-Home Learning components, a Collaborative Model that positions parents as active guides in their child's education; parent leadership and formation emphasized. - Open invitation for parents to visit and engage with the school; strong community and family integration.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive keywords present: partnership with families; co-educators; home-school integration; parental engagement; family involvement; parental leadership; education partnership; home-centered learning; family catechesis; multi-generational education; community of learners. -

Negative keyword indicators: Not detected.

Why this rating - CDA FM emphasizes robust parent partnerships, home-school integration, and community involvement, which are core Positive Keyword indicators for the Parents & Community category. The public communications clearly frame parents as co-educators and participants in a shared mission, supporting a CLASSICAL rating.

Citations: Parent-families partnership language; at-home learning; campus community statements.

What Would Move the Needle

- Not applicable in this case since all six categories align with CLASSICAL in the available public materials. If there were to be a needle move, it would involve more explicit public articulation of the Great Books program as a named program (e.g., explicit listing of a “Great Books” reading list or canonical Great Conversation prompts) and a clearer, published articulation of the Quadrivium components beyond Latin and the established trivium, to further strengthen the Curriculum category.

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE DISCLAIMER

This audit was conducted using artificial intelligence tools (including large language models and automated web-analysis scripts) to evaluate the extent to which school websites reflect or incorporate recognized principles of classical education (e.g., the trivium, emphasis on truth/beauty/goodness, integration of great books, Latin/classical languages, Socratic method, rigorous academics, moral/character formation, etc.).

Important Limitations and Caveats

1. Automated Nature: The analysis relies on AI interpretation of publicly-accessible school website content as of the date of the audit. It does not involve direct contact with schools, review of internal documents, classroom observation, or verification of curriculum implementation beyond what is stated or implied on the website.
2. Probabilistic Results: Scores and assessments are probabilistic and reflect the AI's best interpretation of available text and site structure. They are not infallible and may miss nuance, context, or recent changes not yet reflected online.
3. Subjectivity of Classical Education: "Classical Education" encompasses a range of traditions and interpretations (e.g., Dorothy Sayers' trivium model, Classical Christian Education, Great Books programs, etc.). The Humanitas Institute Audit of the Six Elements of Classical Education uses a broad, consensus-based framework derived from prominent classical education organizations and thought leaders. Reasonable people may disagree on weighting or inclusion of specific criteria.
4. No Official Endorsement or Certification: Results do not constitute official endorsement, accreditation, or certification by any classical education organization. They are provided for informational and research purposes only.
5. Potential for Error: Websites may be incomplete, poorly worded, or temporarily inaccurate. Conversely, sophisticated marketing language may create false positives. Human review by parents, educators, or classical education experts is strongly recommended before drawing final conclusions about any school.
6. Data Privacy and Ethics: Only publicly available information was analyzed. No attempts were made to access password-protected areas or collect personal data.
7. No Liability: The authors, developers, and distributors of this audit assume no liability for decisions made on the basis of these results. Users are solely responsible for their own due diligence.
