

The Humanitas Institute

Six Elements of Classical Education School Website Audit

School: All Saints Academy
School Website: <https://allsaintsclassical.com/>

December 21, 2025

Disclaimer

This audit was performed using artificial intelligence tools to evaluate the presence and strength of classical education principles on school websites. Results are automated, probabilistic in nature, and should be considered indicative rather than definitive. See the full disclaimer in the Appendix more details.

ACCS Member School

Any school that belongs to the Association of Classical Christian Schools ACCS or the Society for Classical Learning SCL is, by definition, recognized as a classical school because both organizations require adherence to the six essential elements defined by the Humanitas Institute. However, a school's website may not clearly reflect its conformity to one or more elements. In such cases, the school may still receive a "Somewhat Classical" rating for those elements. Schools can update their website content at any time to achieve a "Classical" rating for a given element.

Executive Summary

All Saints Academy Wa 98383 presents a robust classical Christian framework in public-facing materials. The school consistently positions itself as Christ-centered and classical, foregrounding virtues, formation, and communal worship as core drivers of education. It explicitly states a purpose of forming students' souls and character, not merely preparing them for college or jobs, and it emphasizes partnership with Christian families and churches. Evidence from the site shows a clear emphasis on wonder, worship, virtue formation, and a shared mission with families, with narratives about a Christ-centered, classical education and a culture of memory, ritual, and communal life. The public materials reveal strong alignment with Religious and Metaphysical Foundations and School Purpose/Goal, solid but more limited alignment for Curriculum and Pedagogy (compared to an ideal, text-heavy Great-Book, Trivium-focused program), robust alignment for Faculty, and clear alignment for Parents & Community.

Overall classification: CLASSICAL.

Notes on category-by-category signals: - Religious and Metaphysical Foundations: Strong. Christ-centered language, worship, and paideia references appear in the public materials, including explicit statements about wonder leading to worship. Positive signals dominate; no clear negative signals observed in the public materials. - School Purpose and Goal: Strong. Emphasis on formation, virtue, and the true/beautiful/good; explicit critique of job- or college-only orientation is present. - Curriculum: Moderate-to-strong signals but with gaps relative to full Great-Books emphasis and explicit Trivium/Quadrivium articulation. Latin is present, and the classical framing is explicit, but direct Great Books/Great Conversation language is not consistently visible in the public content. - Pedagogy: Moderate signals. There is evidence of contemplative/restful levers and a holistic approach, but explicit Socratic/seminar/Rhetoric programs are not clearly demonstrated in the public-facing materials. - Faculty: Strong signals. Descriptions of gifted faculty, small teacher/student ratio, and the living curriculum appear. - Parents & Community: Strong signals. Deliberate partnership with families, parent involvement, and accessible resources for families are evident.

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - The school identifies itself as Christ-centered and Classical from guiding principles and mission statements. The site emphasizes a Christ-centered education with a devotional and worship-oriented lifecycle, including Chapel integration and liturgical rhythm ideas.
 - The text states education begins in wonder and ends in worship, indicating a transcendental/metaphysical orientation toward virtue and beauty.
 - Paideia language (a formation-ecology concept) appears in materials discussing raising children in the discipline and paideia of the Lord, tying moral formation to biblical formation.
- Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis
 - Positive keywords present: Christ-centered, worship, wonder, paideia, theology/concrete religious formation, virtue formation, liturgy, sacred context, sacred worship, communal faith life.

-
- Negative keywords: None observed in public materials.
 - Why this rating
 - The school asserts a religious-metaphysical core and liturgical rhythm as integral to education, which matches the Positive Keywords for this element and aligns with the transcendental/real ideals described in the classical rubric. The absence of secular or value-neutral signals in the public materials supports CLASSICAL here.

Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - The materials frame education as formation and virtue cultivation rather than job training, with explicit emphasis on forming character and aligning with virtue and wisdom. A motto line notes pursuing the good, true, and beautiful for God's glory, signaling a teleological aim beyond information transfer.
 - Public statements describe virtue formation and a focus on the soul (formation of students, not merely information).
 - The school positions itself as partnering with families in a Christ-centered classical project rather than a purely secular skill- or credential-driven path.
- Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis
 - Positive keywords present: formation, virtue, wisdom, true/good/beautiful, scholé/worship-wonders, hedged against mere job-readiness, Christ-centered mission.
 - Negative keywords: explicit emphasis away from college/work-first framing appears (i.e., not job-prep focused); no counter signals observed in public materials.
- Why this rating
 - The public materials clearly map to formation-and-virtue orientation and teleological aims consistent with classical aims. This yields a CLASSICAL rating for Element 2.

Element 3: Curriculum — SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - Public materials explicitly describe a Christ-centered, classical framing, and include the use of Latin and classical pedagogy language (e.g., “classical education” and reference to Latin learning benefits). The presence of Latin indicates classical aims, even if the site does not exhaustively list Trivium/Quadrivium or Great Books in every page.
 - There are explicit mentions of classical content posture (e.g., descriptive emphasis on a classical tradition; “Latin Primer” references appear in some pages). The site emphasizes a heritage-based approach rather than a purely modern social-studies framing.
 - The site foregrounds “classical education” and “great books” language more in general mission statements rather than in every page of the curriculum. The public materials do not consistently present explicit Great Books/Great Conversation language on core curriculum pages.
- Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis
 - Positive keywords present: Latin, classical education, heritage/western tradition, memory-based learning, humanist/classical framing, tradition, disciplined formation, contemplation/ wonder.
 - Negative keywords present: Some elements from the Six Elements doc that would signal lack of Great Books or lack of Trivium/Quadrivium are not clearly observed in the public materials; there is not a robust, explicit Great Books/Great Conversation emphasis in the public content.
- Why this rating
 - The curriculum signals align with classical aims (Latin, classical framing, and a formation-first approach), but the public-facing content does not consistently confirm the full Great Books/Great Conversation emphasis or explicit Three Liberal Arts (grammar, logic, rhetoric) framing in every page. This yields SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL rather than fully CLASSICAL, pending fuller Great Books/Trivium-Quadrivium explicitness.

Element 4: Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - The school foregrounds a contemplative and formation-focused approach (education begins in wonder and worship; call to joy and community). There are references to memory-work, liturgical rhythm, and formation-oriented pedagogy in the public materials.
 - The site emphasizes a strong sense of community, chapel-based rhythms, and a small teacher-student ratio, signaling relational pedagogy and a contemplative pace.
 - There is mention of “classical education” and the aim to form the soul through education, which is consistent with a Restful/Scholé-inflected pedagogy in parts of classical education discourse. However, explicit Socratic seminars, debates, or explicit rhetoric training are not consistently evidenced in the public content. The site’s materials emphasize formation and character more than explicit high-school Socratic pedagogy in the public materials.
- Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis
 - Positive keywords present: contemplative/Scholé, wonder, memory, liturgy, worship, formation, community, small class size.
 - Negative keywords present: explicit “Socratic seminar,” “debate,” or direct “rhetoric training” language is not clearly present in the public materials.
- Why this rating
 - The school shows a strong formative pedagogy with contemplative elements and a memory-based approach in lower grades, plus chapel and community life. However, a lack of explicit Socratic or formal rhetoric/seminar pedagogy in public materials suggests the pedagogy is not fully Classical in the strongest sense. Thus, SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL.

Element 5: Faculty — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - Public materials describe the faculty as gifted instructors who love the Lord and maintain a small teacher-student ratio (approx. 1:12). This signals a high-quality, virtuous teaching corps and a close-knit teaching environment.
 - The site describes the faculty as part of a “living curriculum” and emphasizes that they form the culture and ethos of the school. While the exact “living curriculum” language is more deeply developed in the broader classical education lexicon, the public materials imply faculty-directed formation and mentorship roles.
- Positive/Negative Keywords Analysis
 - Positive keywords present: gifted instructors, love of God, small teacher-student ratio, mentor/teacher as forming influence, living curriculum (as a concept in classical education literature).
 - Negative keywords present: none observed in public materials.
- Why this rating
 - The public materials strongly emphasize virtuous, capable, and relational faculty and the key role of teachers in forming character and culture, which aligns with CLASSICAL.

Element 6: Parents & Community — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - Strong emphasis on partnership with families and churches; explicit mention of family partnership, parent involvement, and accessibility for Christian families. This aligns with a classical education ethos of family formation and shared mission.
 - The school describes intentional family engagement, multiple channels for parent involvement (e.g., parent portal, FAQs, admissions communications), and a framework that invites parent participation rather than a consumer-only approach.
 - The materials discuss fundraising, tuition assistance, and endowments to support access for families, signaling a community-centered approach to classical education.
- Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis

-
- Positive keywords present: partnership with families, parent formation, communal events, open campus/visits, parent education (book studies, gatherings), parent involvement.
 - Negative keywords present: none observed in public materials.
 - Why this rating
 - The school demonstrates a robust, proactive stance toward parent partnerships and community involvement, consistent with Classical education expectations.

Aggregate Ranking and Narrative

- Aggregate Ranking: CLASSICAL
- Rationale
 - Across the six categories, All Saints Academy Wa 98383 shows strong alignment with the Classical education rubric in Religious Foundations, Purpose/Goal, Faculty, and Parents & Community; it demonstrates substantial alignment in Curriculum and Pedagogy but with some gaps in explicit Great Books/Trivium/Quadrivium articulation and explicit Socratic pedagogy in public-facing materials. Taken together, the overall profile is CLASSICAL, with some room for needle-moving improvements in Curriculum and Pedagogy (see below).
- What would move the needle (for SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL cases)
 - Explicitly publish and reference Trivium/Quadrivium in Curriculum pages, including explicit statements about grammar, logic, and rhetoric as foundational disciplines.
 - Include explicit Great Books and Great Conversation language and lists within core curriculum pages, plus public commitments to reading primary sources and canonical works.
 - Document explicit Socratic seminar, dialectic, or rhetoric training practices across grades (especially at upper levels) to strengthen Pedagogy alignment.
 - Increase conspicuous display of liturgical practices and communal rituals (e.g., chapel schedules, liturgical calendar, and music program) to reinforce Liturgical/Communal identity in Public materials.

Appendix

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE DISCLAIMER

This audit was conducted using artificial intelligence tools (including large language models and automated web-analysis scripts) to evaluate the extent to which school websites reflect or incorporate recognized principles of classical education (e.g., the trivium, emphasis on truth/beauty/goodness, integration of great books, Latin/classical languages, Socratic method, rigorous academics, moral/character formation, etc.).

Important Limitations and Caveats

1. Automated Nature: The analysis relies on AI interpretation of publicly-accessible school website content as of the date of the audit. It does not involve direct contact with schools, review of internal documents, classroom observation, or verification of curriculum implementation beyond what is stated or implied on the website.
2. Probabilistic Results: Scores and assessments are probabilistic and reflect the AI's best interpretation of available text and site structure. They are not infallible and may miss nuance, context, or recent changes not yet reflected online.
3. Subjectivity of Classical Education: "Classical Education" encompasses a range of traditions and interpretations (e.g., Dorothy Sayers' trivium model, Classical Christian Education, Great Books programs, etc.). The Humanitas Institute Audit of the Six Elements of Classical Education uses a broad, consensus-based framework derived from prominent classical education organizations and thought leaders. Reasonable people may disagree on weighting or inclusion of specific criteria.
4. No Official Endorsement or Certification: Results do not constitute official endorsement, accreditation, or certification by any classical education organization. They are provided for informational and research purposes only.
5. Potential for Error: Websites may be incomplete, poorly worded, or temporarily inaccurate. Conversely, sophisticated marketing language may create false positives. Human review by parents, educators, or classical education experts is strongly recommended before drawing final conclusions about any school.
6. Data Privacy and Ethics: Only publicly available information was analyzed. No attempts were made to access password-protected areas or collect personal data.
7. No Liability: The authors, developers, and distributors of this audit assume no liability for decisions made on the basis of these results. Users are solely responsible for their own due diligence.

By reading or using this document, you acknowledge and accept the limitations described above.