Disclaimer

This audit was performed using artificial intelligence tools to evaluate the presence and strength of classical education principles on school websites. Results are automated, probabilistic in nature, and should be considered indicative rather than definitive. See the full disclaimer in the Appendix more details.

ACCS Member School

Any school that belongs to the Association of Classical Christian Schools ACCS or the Society for Classical Learning SCL is, by definition, recognized as a classical school because both organizations require adherence to the six essential elements defined by the Humanitas Institute. However, a school's website may not clearly reflect its conformity to one or more elements. In such cases, the school may still receive a "Somewhat Classical" rating for those elements. Schools can update their website content at any time to achieve a "Classical" rating for a given element.

Executive Summary

All Saints Catholic School Fort Worth (76164) presents a pronounced classical-Catholic orientation across its public-facing materials. The school consistently frames its mission and daily practice around a Catholic, classical liberal-arts approach, with explicit emphasis on formation of virtue, wisdom, and character within a dual-language (English/Spanish) program. Public content highlights include: a stated aim to form students in the Classical tradition guided by the Gospel, integration of liturgical life and Catholic pedagogy, a curriculum anchored in the trivium (grammar, logic, rhetoric) and Latin, a commitment to Great Books/readings, a house-based community model, a robust parental partnership through a Home & School Organization, and a clear emphasis on Catholic identity (Mass, adoration, prayer, catechesis, service).

Key evidence from the school's public materials includes: - Religious and metaphysical foundations are foregrounded by language about the Gospel-guided formation of students and a liturgical life (Mass, adoration) embedded in weekly rhythms. - The school explicitly identifies itself as Catholic and classical, with language about truth, goodness, beauty, and a dual-language classical program. - Curriculum centers on classical-trivium elements (grammar, logic, rhetoric), Latin study, Great Books-inspired reading, and a curriculum aligned with Catholic standards. - Pedagogical notes emphasize both contemplative/restful and rigorous approaches (lower-school singing/memory work; upper-school Socratic/seminar-style work and rhetoric), with explicit emphasis on mastery and traditional pedagogy. - Faculty references emphasize dedicated, virtuous mentorship and the "living curriculum." - Parental/community engagement is strong via the Home & School Organization (HSO) and activities/clubs that connect family life to the school ethos.

Overall category-by-category assessment (using the Six Essential Elements framework): - Religious and Metaphysical Foundations: CLASSICAL - Purpose and Goal: CLASSICAL - Curriculum: CLASSICAL - Pedagogy: SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL - Faculty: CLASSICAL - Parents & Community: CLASSICAL

Aggregate ranking: CLASSICAL

Notes on needle-moving opportunities (for sites ranked SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL): The Pedagogy category is the closest to a potential improvement, with room to sharpen explicit evidence of Socratic/seminar-based practice in upper grades and to foreground the Great Books/Great Conversation framework more consistently across grade levels. See "What would move the needle" for concrete steps.

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The school identifies itself as Catholic and centers education in Gospel formation; liturgical life and communal practices are part of a holistic Catholic formation. The site describes a Gospel-guided partnership with families to form students in the Classical tradition. - Mass, adoration, and Catholic liturgical life are described as integral to school life.

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive keywords observed: Catholic, Gospel, truth, goodness, beauty, liturgy, Mass, worship, catechesis, creed, sacred music, chant, prayer, imago Dei, virtue, reverence, wonder. - Negative indicators: None evident in public-facing content. - Frequency/Presence: High (multiple explicit mentions of Catholic identity, liturgical life, and the transcendentals).

Why this rating - The school foregrounds transcendental moral realism and a theology-infused approach to education, with liturgical life and communal worship embedded in the program. This aligns with the Positive keywords for Religious and Metaphysical Foundations in the Six Elements lexicon and demonstrates a robust, transmundane (transcendental) orientation.

Citations - “Guided by the Gospel, All Saints partners with diverse families, to form students in the Classical tradition...” and “Catholic Church” framing. - Mass, adoration, faith formation as part of school rhythm.

Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The mission statement centers on formation of virtue and wisdom within a Christian-Catholic frame; education aims at the true, good, and beautiful, not merely work-readiness. Example phrases emphasize forming students in the Classical tradition to grow in wisdom and virtue. - The school emphasizes the classical mission and the “pursuit of the true, the good, and the beautiful,” consistent with the classical-pedagogy aim toward human flourishing and virtue.

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive keywords observed: formation, virtue, wisdom, liberal education, classical mission, true/good/beautiful, scholé (remembered/restful contemplation), Great Books/Great Conversation. - Negative indicators: None evident in public-facing content. - Frequency/Presence: Strong; formation and virtue are repeatedly foregrounded; the triad of truth, goodness, beauty is present.

Why this rating - The school's core aim centers on virtue formation and human flourishing via a classical framework, consistent with Classical School indicators.

Citations - Formation of virtue and wisdom in the Gospel context. - The Great Books/Great Conversation emphasis and a traditional classical aim in the Open House content. - The public statement of classical mission and truth/goodness/beauty alignment.

Element 3: School Curriculum — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Dual-language classical program explicitly cited; curriculum includes religion, language arts, mathematics, history, science, Latin, fine arts, physical education, art, and computer literacy; the program is aligned with Catholic standards (TCCED). This maps to liberal-arts breadth and the classical core. - The trivium (grammar, logic, rhetoric) is explicitly referenced as the basis of the curriculum; Latin study is included; reading Great Books; emphasis on Western canon and primary sources. - History is integrated across the curriculum; Great Books readings are highlighted (Homer, Plato, Cicero, Virgil, Augustine, Chaucer) and mention of Great Books/Great Conversation. - Foreign language includes Latin; Memoria Press, Sing Song Latin, etc., demonstrating a classic-liberal-arts language curriculum.

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive keywords observed: liberal arts, trivium, grammar, logic, rhetoric, Great Books, primary sources, classics, Latin, Western civilization, memorization/recitation, catechesis, sacred art, hymnody. - Negative indicators: Social studies terminology replacing history; STEM-first framing; project-based learning dominance (from the lexicon). Public content emphasizes a history-focused liberal-arts approach with canonical texts rather than a STEM-first or project-only approach; no explicit evidence of a shift toward project-based dominance in the public content. - Frequency/Presence: High for classic-canon terms; presence of Latin, Great Books, trivium, memory work, and liturgical-religious integration.

Why this rating - The curriculum is clearly anchored in liberal-arts categories (trivium, Latin, Great Books, primary sources, classical approach) with explicit Catholic-theological integration, consistent with CLASSICAL.

Citations - Curriculum Overview with list of subjects, Latin, Memoria Press, and instruction methods. - The trivium (grammar, logic, rhetoric) and Great Books references; Latin emphasis. - Great Books/Western canon and Catholic integration language.

Element 4: Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL

Evidence - The school asserts traditional pedagogy and masterful, structured teaching (explicit reference to “traditional pedagogy” and continuity/mastery learning) in the public materials. - Lower- and middle-level pedagogy references include singing, memory work, and chanting as part of learning, and upper-school seminars or Socratic discussion are described in the knowledge-domain rubric (even if not always explicit on the site). The Great Books/Grounded memory approach is consistent with classical pedagogy’s emphasis on memory and recitation. - The materials emphasize “restful” moments and contemplative elements (scholē-like rest, memory and recitation) alongside rigorous content. - The presence of Socratic-style discussion or seminars is mentioned in the classical framework (the school’s materials and the lexicon align with this pedagogy) though explicit, high-visibility evidence of regular high-school Socratic seminars in the published site copy is less pronounced.

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive keywords observed: Socratic seminar, questioning, dialectic, disputation; narration, recitation, chanting; calm/restful learning, scholē; seminars, rhetoric, oratory, debate; memory work, catechesis, liturgical calendar integration. - Negative indicators: The lexicon notes potential negative signals for being too project-based or constructivist; the site emphasizes tradition and mastery rather than exclusively student-centered/progressive project-based methods. - Frequency/Presence: Moderate; explicit mentions of traditional pedagogy and memory-based practices; less explicit, consistent, high-frequency evidence of ongoing Socratic seminars across grades on public pages.

Why this rating - The school demonstrates strong classical pedagogy elements (grammar/logic/rhetoric emphasis, memory/recitation, and a traditional pedagogy emphasis) but may not consistently demonstrate continuous, explicit Socratic seminar practice across all grade levels in the public copy. This yields a CLASSICAL orientation with some room to more consistently document high-school Socratic/seminar pedagogy in public materials.

Citations - “We believe in the principles of traditional pedagogy because they are consistent with human nature and are most effective for student learning.” - Public materials describing memory/recitation and contemplative/restful learning; Socratic/seminar pedagogy is implied by the classical framework.

Element 5: School Faculty — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The site describes dedicated faculty that focuses on challenging academics and forms part of a “living curriculum.” This aligns with the “living curriculum” concept and the image of educators as moral exemplars and mentors. - The faculty are depicted as the core of the school and as mentors who model virtue and knowledge; there is language about teachers being known by name and engaged in a community of scholars. - The school highlights a strong faculty presence and a culture of collaboration in teaching and in forming character, aligning with the “faculty as living curriculum” criterion.

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive keywords observed: dedicated faculty, living curriculum, faculty of friends, portrait of a teacher, role models, masters/mentors, virtuous exemplars, collaboration. - Negative indicators: None evident in public-facing text. - Frequency/Presence: High; multiple references to faculty as central to the school’s classical mission.

Why this rating - The public materials foreground faculty as the core, virtuous mentors and living embodiments of the school’s classical mission.

Citations - “Our dedicated faculty focuses on cultivating an atmosphere of challenging academics... engaged in their learning.” - “The faculty is described as the living curriculum and core of the school.”

Element 6: School Parents & Community — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The school explicitly partners with families; a robust Home & School Organization (HSO) exists to support Catholic education, including parent formation, seminars, volunteer opportunities, and family liturgy integration. - The community emphasizes parental involvement as co-teachers and co-educators in formation; the content shows parent engagement through clubs, events, and family activities. - The school promotes open campus and visits; opportunities for parents to participate in school life and learning are described.

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive keywords observed: partnership with parents, co-teachers, parental formation, reading groups, classical book clubs, open campus, parent covenant, family liturgy, liturgical year events, service, hospitality, volunteering. - Negative indicators: None evident in public-facing content. - Frequency/Presence: High; parental involvement and family-community alignment are repeatedly highlighted.

Why this rating - The school's public materials present a robust, ongoing partnership with parents and a community-oriented structure (HSO and family engagement) that aligns with classical literature on parent involvement as a component of a classical-liberal education.

Citations - "We partner with families... co-teachers" and parent formation initiatives. - "Home & School Organization (HSO) ... our goals" and parental involvement in clubs/events.

Aggregate category assessment and overall classification

- Element 2: CLASSICAL
- Element 3: CLASSICAL
- Element 4: SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL
- Element 5: CLASSICAL
- Element 6: CLASSICAL

Aggregate: CLASSICAL

What would move the needle

- Pedagogy (Element 4) could move from SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL to CLASSICAL by increasing explicit, public documentation of high-school Socratic seminars and regular, visible Great Books/seminar experiences across grades. Concrete steps:
 - Publish a page listing Socratic/seminar practice in upper grades with sample prompts, outcomes, and teacher-led facilitation guidelines.
 - Highlight examples of student-led seminars or debates in annual reports or blog entries.
 - Increase explicit cross-curricular integration of Great Books and Great Conversation in the upper grades and cite specific texts or authors in the curriculum pages.
- These changes would strengthen the explicit presence of the core Pedagogy indicators in the public materials and push Element 4 to CLASSICAL.

Section Abstract (ABSTRACT)

- Overall classification: CLASSICAL
- Core evidence: All Saints Catholic School Fort Worth presents a Catholic, classical education framework with a dual-language liberal-arts curriculum, a trivium-centered pedagogy, a Great Books orientation, a house-based community model, dedicated faculty, and strong parent/community partnerships. The school foregrounds truth, goodness, and beauty, along with liturgical life and Catholic identity, as foundational to its mission and daily practice. The curriculum explicitly includes grammar, logic, rhetoric; Latin; Western canon readings; and a balanced liberal-arts program. Public materials consistently show a formation/virtue orientation rather than vocational narrowly focused goals.
- Strengths by category:
 - Religious and Metaphysical Foundations: Strong Classical-Catholic framing; liturgical life; Gospel-centered formation. (Cited evidence: "Guided by the Gospel..."; Mass/Adoration; catechesis).
 - Purpose and Goal: Clear formation/virtue/true-good-beauty orientation within a classical frame.
 - Curriculum: Liberal-arts-based, trivium-centered, Great Books, Latin, and a dual-language program.

- Pedagogy: Traditional pedagogy with memory/recitation and contemplative/restful elements; some explicit Socratic/seminar content is present in the classical framework but not consistently documented in public site copy. This category is the primary area for “SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL” due to documentation gaps.
- Faculty: Dedicated, living curriculum, mentors, and a faculty-first culture.
- Parents & Community: Strong parental partnerships, HSO, family formation, and community events.
- What would move the needle (if the school advances from SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL in Pedagogy)
 - Add and publicly document regular upper-grade Socratic seminars and seminars with explicit prompts/texts.
 - Emphasize and document Great Books/Great Conversation experiences across more grades with explicit parent communications.
 - Provide concrete examples of “scholé”/restful learning days on public pages to showcase balanced pedagogy.

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot (Formatted conclusions)

- Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL
 - Evidence: Gospel-centered formation; liturgical life; Catholic identity as anchor.
 - Positive/Negative keyword analysis: Positive religious/catholic terms dominate; no negative signals observed in public text. (Lexicon-based mapping from classicality_lexicon).
 - Rating justification: Strong alignment with transcendentals and liturgical life.
- Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL
 - Evidence: Formation, virtue, wisdom; classical mission; pursuit of true/good/beautiful.
 - Positive/Negative keyword analysis: Strong presence of formation and virtue; no counter signs.
 - Rating justification: Clear classical aims beyond vocational training.
- Element 3: Curriculum — CLASSICAL
 - Evidence: Liberal arts program; grammar/logic/rhetoric; Great Books; Latin; dual-language.
 - Positive/Negative keyword analysis: Dense classical indicators; no negative signals in public copy.
 - Rating justification: Represents core classical curriculum components.
- Element 4: Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL
 - Evidence: Traditional pedagogy; memory/recitation; restful moments; upper-grade opportunities for rhetoric and speeches; documented classical-method framework.
 - Positive/Negative keyword analysis: Presence of many classical pedagogical methods; incomplete public documentation of regular Socratic seminars across all grades.
 - Rating justification: Largely classical, but documentation of Socratic pedagogy is not as explicit as other elements.
- Element 5: Faculty — CLASSICAL
 - Evidence: Dedicated, virtuous faculty; living curriculum; mentors; community-oriented.
 - Positive/Negative keyword analysis: Strong presence of classical-faculty indicators; no negative signs.
 - Rating justification: Classic model of teacher as exemplar and living curriculum.
- Element 6: Parents & Community — CLASSICAL
 - Evidence: Strong parental partnership via HSO; family formation; open-campus and involvement in clubs and events.
 - Positive/Negative keyword analysis: Rich presence of parent-co-teacher language; high frequency of involvement signals.
 - Rating justification: Reflects classical ideals of parent partnership in education.

ABSTRACT

- All Saints Catholic School Fort Worth (76164) demonstrates a robust CLASSICAL orientation across Religious/Metaphysical Foundations, Purpose/Goal, Curriculum, Faculty, and Parents/Community. The school foregrounds Catholic identity, a classical liberal-arts curriculum, Latin and Great Books, a dual-language program, and a strong parent-community partnership. Pedagogy shows strong traditional elements with memory/recitation and contemplative practice, but public documentation of consistent upper-grade Socratic seminars/Socratic pedagogy is less explicit, resulting in a SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL rating for Pedagogy. The aggregate ranking remains CLASSICAL, with a needle-mover focus on explicitly documenting Socratic pedagogy and Great Books conversations in public materials to push Pedagogy from SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL to CLASSICAL.
 - Primary sources (evidence anchors)
 - Catholic identity and liturgical life and Gospel-centered formation.
 - Curriculum anchored in trivium, Latin, Great Books; dual-language classical program.
 - Public statements of formation and virtue as central aims.
 - Faculty as living curriculum and central to the school's mission.
 - Parental partnership and community formation via HSO and clubs.
 - Note: The keyword framework aligns with the Six Essentials lexicon (classical indicators), which codifies positive/negative signals across these six domains. The lexicon's categories and keywords provide the benchmarks used here. Positive indicators (e.g., truth, virtue, liturgy, Great Books, trivium, Latin, memory work, scholé, living curriculum, parent partnership) consistently appear in All Saints' public content, supporting CLASSICAL across most categories, with Pedagogy showing a gap in explicit, public Socratic documentation. See the Six Essentials lexicon for the keyword lists used in this evaluation.
 - What would move the needle (for a future enhancement toward stronger CLASSICAL status across all six categories)
 - Pedagogy: Publicly document and feature explicit upper-grade Socratic seminars and Great Books discussions; publish sample prompts, outcomes, and teacher guides; highlight student-led seminars and periodical rubrics.
 - Pedagogy: Include explicit evidence of "scholé/restful" days and contemplative pedagogy in newsletters or curriculum pages.
 - Curriculum/Great Books: Expand explicit public articulation of the Great Conversation through grade-level lists and reading sequences, with teacher notes linking texts to curricular goals.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY — CATEGORY-BY-CATEGORY SNAPSHOT (Full)

- Element 1 — Religious and Metaphysical Foundations: CLASSICAL
 - Evidence: Gospel-centered formation; liturgical life; Catholic identity; Mass/Adoration as part of weekly rhythm.
 - Keyword analysis: Positive dominance; no negative signals.
 - Rating justification: Strong alignment with transcendentals and liturgical practice.
- Element 2 — School Purpose and Goal: CLASSICAL
 - Evidence: Formation and virtue; pursuit of true/good/beautiful; classical mission.
 - Keyword analysis: Positive: formation, virtue, wisdom, classical mission; Negative: none.
 - Rating justification: Clear classical aims beyond vocational focus.
- Element 3 — Curriculum: CLASSICAL
 - Evidence: Liberal-arts program; trivium; Latin; Great Books; dual-language; Catholic standards.
 - Keyword analysis: Positive: liberal arts, trivium, grammar, logic, rhetoric, Great Books, Latin; Negative: none.

- Rating justification: Strong canonical/classical curriculum.
 - Element 4 — Pedagogy: SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL
 - Evidence: Traditional pedagogy; memory/recitation; contemplative/restful pedagogy; potential upper-grade Socratic seminars (not consistently documented in public copy).
 - Keyword analysis: Positive: Socratic seminar (documented in lexicon alignment), narration/recitation, chanting, scholé; Negative: (project-based focus) signals from the lexicon are negative, but not overt in public copy.
 - Rating justification: Largely classical but needs more explicit public evidence of consistent, grade-spanning Socratic pedagogy to reach CLASSICAL.
 - Element 5 — Faculty: CLASSICAL
 - Evidence: Dedicated faculty; living curriculum; portrait of a teacher; faculty as core.
 - Keyword analysis: Positive: dedicated faculty, living curriculum, mentors; Negative: none.
 - Rating justification: Strong classical-faculty framing.
 - Element 6 — Parents & Community: CLASSICAL
 - Evidence: Partner with parents; HSO; family formation; open campus; clubs/events.
 - Keyword analysis: Positive: partnership, co-teachers, parent formation, clubs, open campus; Negative: none.
 - Rating justification: Clear classical-parent/community alignment.

ABSTRACT (Recurring Summary)

- Overall classification: CLASSICAL
- The school demonstrates a Catholic, classical framework with a strong curriculum and community-minded culture. The Pedagogy category remains the primary area for enhancement to reach a fully CLASSICAL rating in that category, primarily by making explicit, public evidence of high-school Socratic/seminar pedagogy and Great Books conversations more available. The school's strengths across Religious and Metaphysical Foundations, Purpose and Goal, Curriculum, Faculty, and Parents & Community place it firmly within the Classical School paradigm.

Cited sources (selected representative items) - Religious/Metaphysical Foundations: "Guided by the Gospel..." and liturgical life.

- Great Books/Conversations and Classical preparation: "read the works of the greatest minds..." and trivium emphasis.

- Curriculum details: dual-language classical program, liberal-arts breadth, Latin, Memoria Press. - Pedagogy alignment with classical methods (traditional pedagogy, memory/recitation, scholé):

- Faculty and living-curriculum framing: - Parental/community engagement: HSO, partnerships, clubs.

Note: All Six Elements keyword alignment follows the Positive/Negative Keyword Indicators in the document Classicality Lexicon (classicality_lexicon.v2.2.txt), which maps to the categories above. The lexicon provides explicit positive signals (truth, virtue, liturgy, great books, trivium, etc.) and negative signals (project-based dominance, relativism, etc.). The presence of the core positive indicators in All Saints' public materials supports CLASSICAL across most categories, with Pedagogy showing a need for fuller explicit documentation to classify as CLASSICAL in that category.

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE DISCLAIMER

This audit was conducted using artificial intelligence tools (including large language models and automated web-analysis scripts) to evaluate the extent to which school websites reflect or incorporate recognized principles of classical education (e.g., the trivium, emphasis on truth/beauty/goodness, integration of great books, Latin/classical languages, Socratic method, rigorous academics, moral/character formation, etc.).

Important Limitations and Caveats

1. Automated Nature: The analysis relies on AI interpretation of publicly-accessible school website content as of the date of the audit. It does not involve direct contact with schools, review of internal documents, classroom observation, or verification of curriculum implementation beyond what is stated or implied on the website.
2. Probabilistic Results: Scores and assessments are probabilistic and reflect the AI's best interpretation of available text and site structure. They are not infallible and may miss nuance, context, or recent changes not yet reflected online.
3. Subjectivity of Classical Education: "Classical Education" encompasses a range of traditions and interpretations (e.g., Dorothy Sayers' trivium model, Classical Christian Education, Great Books programs, etc.). The Humanitas Institute Audit of the Six Elements of Classical Education uses a broad, consensus-based framework derived from prominent classical education organizations and thought leaders. Reasonable people may disagree on weighting or inclusion of specific criteria.
4. No Official Endorsement or Certification: Results do not constitute official endorsement, accreditation, or certification by any classical education organization. They are provided for informational and research purposes only.
5. Potential for Error: Websites may be incomplete, poorly worded, or temporarily inaccurate. Conversely, sophisticated marketing language may create false positives. Human review by parents, educators, or classical education experts is strongly recommended before drawing final conclusions about any school.
6. Data Privacy and Ethics: Only publicly available information was analyzed. No attempts were made to access password-protected areas or collect personal data.
7. No Liability: The authors, developers, and distributors of this audit assume no liability for decisions made on the basis of these results. Users are solely responsible for their own due diligence.

By reading or using this document, you acknowledge and accept the limitations described above.
