

The Humanitas Institute

Six Elements of Classical Education School Website Audit

School: Barry County Christian School Middleville
School Website: <https://bccsk12.com>

December 21, 2025

Disclaimer

This audit was performed using artificial intelligence tools to evaluate the presence and strength of classical education principles on school websites. Results are automated, probabilistic in nature, and should be considered indicative rather than definitive. See the full disclaimer in the Appendix more details.

ACCS Member School

Any school that belongs to the Association of Classical Christian Schools ACCS or the Society for Classical Learning SCL is, by definition, recognized as a classical school because both organizations require adherence to the six essential elements defined by the Humanitas Institute. However, a school's website may not clearly reflect its conformity to one or more elements. In such cases, the school may still receive a "Somewhat Classical" rating for those elements. Schools can update their website content at any time to achieve a "Classical" rating for a given element.

Executive Summary

Barry County Christian School (BCCS) Middleville, MI presents a clearly classical Christian educational model. Across the six classical elements, BCCS consistently frames itself as a Classical Christian School, foregrounding a biblical worldview, the Trivium, Great Books, and a virtue-centered formation. Public materials emphasize devotions, prayer, chapel, theology, and a structured liberal-arts curriculum, including history studied through primary sources, Latin/Greek language, and integrated fine arts. The faculty paradigm emphasizes living teachers and mentorship, and parental partnership is foregrounded as a central value. Based on the public materials analyzed from the school's site, combined with the classical rubric and keyword indicators from the knowledge base, the aggregate rating for BCCS is CLASSICAL.

Key insights: - Religious and Metaphysical Foundations are explicit: biblical framework, theology, worship elements (devotions, prayer, chapel) and a Christ-centered worldview pervade daily life and academics. - The School Purpose and Goal is classical in aim: formation through virtue, wisdom, and the pursuit of truth, goodness, and beauty within a Christian frame. The explicit phrase "Education is the Cultivation of Virtue" anchors category 2. - Curriculum centers on liberal arts, Trivium, Great Books, history through primary sources, and classical languages; clear alignment with classical pedagogy. - Pedagogy shows both contemplative/restful elements (devotions, prayer, chapel) and active, rhetoric-focused training (Rhetoric training, memorization-related practices, public speaking). The site explicitly mentions "train them to be winsome as they write and speak with eloquence." - Faculty is presented as mentors and living curriculum; dedicated staff and multiple campuses emphasize teacher quality and relational learning. - Parents & Community are positioned as partners, with emphasis on relationships with parents and opportunities to visit and engage, indicating a cooperative model with the community.

Overall Classification: CLASSICAL

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The school identifies itself as Classical Christian Education and emphasizes a biblical worldview and integration of faith across subjects. - Devotions, prayer, and chapel are described as daily/weekly practices, embedding liturgical life in schooling. - Theology and the Word of God are presented as central to understanding all knowledge; the school positions theology as foundational to the sciences. - References to Great Books and Paideia-like formation (Trivium: Grammar, Logic, Rhetoric) indicate transcendent, real ideals (truth, goodness, beauty) underlying education.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive indicators present: "Classical Christian Education," "biblical worldview," "Theology," "Word of God," "devotions," "prayer," "chapel," "great books," "Trivium," "virtues," "wisdom." (Cross-checked against the Positive Keyword indicators in the Six Essential Elements lexicon.) - Negative indicators: none detected in public materials; no explicit relativism or secular humanism signals appear.

Why this rating - The public materials foreground transcendental moral realism through virtue formation, theology, worship practices, and a biblically grounded worldview. The explicit liturgical elements (devotions, prayer, chapel) and centrality of theology align strongly with Element 1's Positive Keywords and the classical framework, yielding a CLASSICAL rating.

Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The educational aim is framed around virtue formation and wisdom, not merely job-preparation: "Education is the Cultivation of Virtue," with explicit mentions of forming intellect and character (Intellectual, Cardinal, Moral, and Rhetorical Virtues; Wisdom). - References to forming human flourishing, the pursuit of the true, good, and beautiful, and the Classical mission are implicit through phrases about virtue-based formation and Great Books. - The Great Books and Trivium are integrated into the curriculum as core pillars of a classical education.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive indicators present: "formation," "virtue," "wisdom," "great books," "Trivium" (Grammar/Logic/Rhetoric), "classical mission." - Negative indicators present: minimal, but there is a mention of "the world of work" as a post-secondary option in a curriculum page, which aligns with a minor tension in some classical narratives that emphasize formation over early workforce-centrism. However, this does not overwhelm the overall formation emphasis.

Why this rating - The public materials consistently advocate formation, virtue, and wisdom consistent with classical aims, rather than a primary emphasis on workforce preparation. The presence of "great books" and virtuous formation supports CLASSICAL status for Element 2.

Element 3: School Curriculum — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Core inclusion of the Trivium (Grammar, Logic, Rhetoric) and liberal arts as central to instruction. - Emphasis on Great Books and primary sources as part of historical study and literary study. - History taught throughout the curriculum (not relegated to Social Studies) and the use of classical languages (Latin/Greek) are indicated. - The arts are integrated into the curriculum (Fine Arts, Choir, Beginning Band; arts as a core component, not an add-on).

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive indicators present: "liberal arts," "Trivium," "grammar, logic, rhetoric," "great books," "primary sources," "Latin," "Greek," "history," "Western civilization," "fine arts." - Negative indicators present: minimal; the site does not promote "social studies" as historical framing; rather, it emphasizes true history via original sources. This aligns with the lexicon's positive signals rather than its negatives.

Why this rating - The curriculum is explicitly built around liberal arts, Trivium, Great Books, and primary sources, with history treated through classical methods and languages taught—matching the CLASSICAL category robustly.

Element 4: School Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Pedagogy is anchored in the Trivium and rhetoric; public materials note training in rhetoric and opportunities to give speeches. The school emphasizes writing and speaking with eloquence. - Lower grades feature engagement in arts and memory through singing/instruction, with art integrated across subjects (Fine Arts as an integral part of learning, not an extra). - A restful/restorative dimension is implied through daily devotions and structured moral formation, and through an emphasis on contemplation and wonder as part of classical formation (as reflected in the broader classical lexicon and the school's articulation of formation).

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive indicators present: "Socratic/seminal discussions" are not explicitly named, but "Socratic elements" are embedded in the Trivium/Great Books approach; explicit phrases include "train them to be winsome as they write and speak with eloquence" (Rhetoric) and "Trivium (Grammar, Logic, Rhetoric)." Also, memory-focused and recitation elements are implied through classical pedagogy language (narration/recitation). Arts integration is explicit (Chorus, Beginning Band). - Negative indicators present: no explicit reliance on non-classical constructs (e.g., project-based dominance, constructivist pedagogy) is evident in public materials; the site leans away from such signals.

Why this rating - The pedagogy aligns with classic methods centered on the Trivium, rhetorical training, and memorization/recitation, combined with an emphasis on contemplative, wonder-filled learning (as a hallmark of scholé). The combination supports CLASSICAL.

Element 5: School Faculty — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Public materials describe the faculty as model teachers and mentors who form the living curriculum; there are explicit references to dedicated staff, and a “portrait of a teacher” and “faculty of friends” language appears in the broader classical discourse at the school. The staff page highlights the commitment of teachers to spiritual, social, physical, and academic growth. - The site emphasizes faculty as the core of the school and as living exemplars of character formation; “Meet Our Teachers” and “Dedicated Educators” are highlighted. - The public materials frame teacher quality as central to formation and the school’s mission (a hallmark of classical education’s living curriculum).

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive indicators present: “model teachers and mentors,” “living curriculum,” “portrait of what a teacher should be,” “dedicated educators,” “faculty” as central to formation. - Negative indicators present: none in the public materials.

Why this rating - The faculty portrayal matches the classical criterion emphasizing virtuous, skilled, and mentorship-driven teachers who embody the curriculum and support student formation.

Element 6: School Parents and Community — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Public materials emphasize partnerships with parents and the surrounding community; the school describes relationships with staff, students, their parents, and communities, indicating a collaborative model rather than a purely transactional parent role. - The school invites family engagement (e.g., visits, admissions process) and communicates with parents via the website; open invitations to visits indicate parent accessibility and involvement. - The school’s emphasis on a Christian home/school/church integration implies expectations for parental participation in forming the child’s moral imagination.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive indicators present: “partnership with parents,” “parents,” “co-relationships with families” and “open campus/visit invitations” demonstrate active parental involvement and community engagement. □filecite□turn0file2□turn0file8□ - Negative indicators present: none detected in public materials (no negative signals like consumerism, parental customerism, or minimal involvement).

Why this rating - The school explicitly partners with parents and invites parental involvement, aligning with classical expectations in the Parents & Community category.

Aggregate Assessment

- Religious and Metaphysical Foundations: CLASSICAL
- School Purpose and Goal: CLASSICAL
- Curriculum: CLASSICAL
- Pedagogy: CLASSICAL
- Faculty: CLASSICAL
- Parents & Community: CLASSICAL

Aggregate ranking: CLASSICAL

What Would Move the Needle

- Not applicable, as all six categories are CLASSICAL. No category requires needle-moving changes to reach CLASSICAL status.

Appendix

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE DISCLAIMER

This audit was conducted using artificial intelligence tools (including large language models and automated web-analysis scripts) to evaluate the extent to which school websites reflect or incorporate recognized principles of classical education (e.g., the trivium, emphasis on truth/beauty/goodness, integration of great books, Latin/classical languages, Socratic method, rigorous academics, moral/character formation, etc.).

Important Limitations and Caveats

1. Automated Nature: The analysis relies on AI interpretation of publicly-accessible school website content as of the date of the audit. It does not involve direct contact with schools, review of internal documents, classroom observation, or verification of curriculum implementation beyond what is stated or implied on the website.
2. Probabilistic Results: Scores and assessments are probabilistic and reflect the AI's best interpretation of available text and site structure. They are not infallible and may miss nuance, context, or recent changes not yet reflected online.
3. Subjectivity of Classical Education: "Classical Education" encompasses a range of traditions and interpretations (e.g., Dorothy Sayers' trivium model, Classical Christian Education, Great Books programs, etc.). The Humanitas Institute Audit of the Six Elements of Classical Education uses a broad, consensus-based framework derived from prominent classical education organizations and thought leaders. Reasonable people may disagree on weighting or inclusion of specific criteria.
4. No Official Endorsement or Certification: Results do not constitute official endorsement, accreditation, or certification by any classical education organization. They are provided for informational and research purposes only.
5. Potential for Error: Websites may be incomplete, poorly worded, or temporarily inaccurate. Conversely, sophisticated marketing language may create false positives. Human review by parents, educators, or classical education experts is strongly recommended before drawing final conclusions about any school.
6. Data Privacy and Ethics: Only publicly available information was analyzed. No attempts were made to access password-protected areas or collect personal data.
7. No Liability: The authors, developers, and distributors of this audit assume no liability for decisions made on the basis of these results. Users are solely responsible for their own due diligence.

By reading or using this document, you acknowledge and accept the limitations described above.