

The Humanitas Institute

Six Elements of Classical Education School Website Audit

School: Faustina Academy
School Website: <https://www.flintacademy.com/>

December 21, 2025

Disclaimer

This audit was performed using artificial intelligence tools to evaluate the presence and strength of classical education principles on school websites. Results are automated, probabilistic in nature, and should be considered indicative rather than definitive. See the full disclaimer in the Appendix more details.

ACCS Member School

Any school that belongs to the Association of Classical Christian Schools ACCS or the Society for Classical Learning SCL is, by definition, recognized as a classical school because both organizations require adherence to the six essential elements defined by the Humanitas Institute. However, a school's website may not clearly reflect its conformity to one or more elements. In such cases, the school may still receive a "Somewhat Classical" rating for those elements. Schools can update their website content at any time to achieve a "Classical" rating for a given element.

Executive Summary

Faustina Academy TX 75061 appears publicly as a Classical, Christian school with a Charlotte Mason influence and a strong emphasis on inclusion and individualized supports (notably dyslexia remediation). The website content emphasizes formation of character and the moral/spiritual dimensions of education, rather than focusing exclusively on career-readiness or standardized metrics. While the school foregrounds classical language (classical tradition) and Christian worldview, explicit references to core classical elements such as Great Books, the Trivium/Quadrivium, or formal Socratic pedagogy are less prominent in the public material. On balance, the school lands in the SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL category across several criteria, with stronger alignment in some categories (notably Industry-standards in Family/Community engagement and clear religious/theological orientation) and partial alignment in others (notably explicit curriculum specifics such as Trivium/Quadrivium and extensive Great Books practice).

Key insights: - Religious/metaphysical foundations are evident (Christian worldview, Scriptures at the center), supporting Element 1 at the SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL level. - The school's stated purpose foregrounds formation, virtue, and a classical framework, placing Element 2 as CLASSICAL with caveats about explicit Great Books emphasis. - Curriculum and pedagogy show classical commitments but lack explicit, widespread evidence of the full Great Books tradition or Trivium/Quadrivium focus in public materials, yielding CATEGORY 3 and CATEGORY 4 as SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL. - Faculty communicate mentorship and mission-aligned teaching, but public materials do not clearly articulate a formal "portrait of the teacher" living-curriculum concept, leading to CATEGORY 5 as SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL. - Parent/Community partnerships are clearly emphasized (parents as co-teachers, inclusion, open access to information and involvement), resulting in CATEGORY 6 as CLASSICAL. - Aggregate classification: SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL overall, with concrete opportunities to strengthen alignment in curriculum specifics, pedagogy, and explicit liberal-arts framing.

Abbreviated assessment by category (aggregate): SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL

Evidence - Public materials emphasize a Classical, Christian education with a Christian environment and Scripture-centered approach. The mission statement explicitly mentions a Christian worldview and Scripture-centered framing. Statements such as "A Classical, Christian, Inclusive, Charlotte Mason Education" and references to Scripture at the center appear in the public content.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive keywords found: Christian, Scripture, worldview, theology-related framing, virtue/formation language (through the philosophical framing and mission statements). - Negative keywords found: None evident in public materials.

Quantitative estimate - Positive hits: 2 - Negative hits: 0 - Total hits considered: 2 - Positive percentage: 100%; Negative: 0%

Why this rating - The school demonstrates a foundational religious/metaphysical orientation through explicit Christian framing and Scriptural emphasis, aligning with Grounded in Theology and liturgical/community aspects to some degree. However, explicit liturgical practices, worship, or formal liturgy are not clearly described in the public materials, which keeps Element 1 from being fully "CLASSICAL" and pushes it to SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL.

Cited elements - "A Classical, Christian, Inclusive, Charlotte Mason Education in Arlington, Texas" (category framing) and Scripture-centered, Christian worldview framing. - "We welcome and educate all children, in an inclusive-model school. We provide a classical education, within a Christian environment" (foundational orientation).

Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The school asserts a formation-oriented aim: a classical tradition integrated with a Christian worldview; a focus on virtue, wisdom, and formation rather than mere information or job-readiness. The philosophical materials emphasize the responsibility of parents and teachers to form character and to adhere to a spiritual-goals framework. The mission emphasizes "a education in the classical tradition... integrated with a Christian worldview, having the Scriptures at the center, and presented in a family-oriented, nurturing environment."

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive keywords: formation, virtue, wisdom, classical tradition, liberal-education orientation, telos (implied by classical framing), permanent questions, Christian worldview, Scripture-centric. - Negative keywords: None clearly present in public materials that would signal a non-classical aim.

Quantitative estimate - Positive hits: 5 - Negative hits: 0 - Total hits: 5 - Positive percentage: 100%; Negative: 0%

Why this rating - The emphasis on formation, virtue, and a classic-tradition frame (with a Christian worldview) aligns with the Classical ideal of forming persons (not just filling heads) and the pursuit of truth, goodness, and beauty. While explicit Great Books or Trivium language is not overtly stated in the public materials, the formation-centric goal and classical framing support CLASSICAL.

Cited elements - Mission/Philosophy statements describing formation and classical/traditional aims and the Christian worldview. - Language around "We welcome and educate all children... in an inclusive-model school. We provide a classical education, within a Christian environment" (formation emphasis within classical framing).

Element 3: School Curriculum — SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL

Evidence - Public materials emphasize "classical education" and Charlotte Mason influence, with a focus on individual supports and inclusive practice (e.g., dyslexia remediation). The explicit enumeration of Great Books or the Trivium/Quadrivium is not clearly present in the public text; there is emphasis on classical framing and "Christian environment," but details of curricular pillars such as the Trivium/Quadrivium or a Great Books sequence are not plainly documented in the accessible public materials.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive keywords found: classical education, Charlotte Mason, Christian education (as a frame for the curriculum), inclusive-model schooling, one-on-one services (supportive, but not curricular core). - Negative keywords found: absence of explicit Great Books, Trivium/Quadrivium, or explicit history-as-graded curriculum references in the public materials.

Quantitative estimate - Positive hits: 3 - Negative hits: 2 - Total hits: 5 - Positive percentage: 60%; Negative: 40%

Why this rating - The public materials present a classical and Christian curricular frame, but with limited explicit articulation of core classical-curriculum staples (Great Books, Trivium/Quadrivium, explicit history-as-curriculum). This partial alignment yields a SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL categorization rather than FULL CLASSICAL.

Cited elements - "A Classical, Christian, Inclusive, Charlotte Mason Education" framing. - "We provide a classical education, within a Christian environment, and utilize research-based, specialized education techniques..." (dyslexia remediation and inclusive supports) highlighting the blend of classical approach with modern supports. - Enrollment/mission discussions that reference classical education, Christian worldview, and living-instruction approaches.

Element 4: School Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL

Evidence - Pedagogical cues include Charlotte Mason influence and a mixed approach designed to be inclusive. The public materials emphasize a combination of classical framing (classical education) with a Charlotte Mason approach and a focus on individual needs (dyslexia remediation, one-on-one tutoring). The site does not prominently advertise Socratic seminars or rigorous high-school-level rhetoric as the primary pedagogy, though it may occur as part of a broader classical framework.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive keywords found: Charlotte Mason, classical education, inclusive model, one-on-one services, memory-friendly aspects (implied by the Charlotte Mason approach), remediation services (dyslexia). - Negative keywords found: absence of explicit Socratic seminars, explicit emphasis on rigorous classical pedagogy (e.g., heavily rhetoric-based upper-level debate), or explicit Scholé/restful contemplative pedagogy in the public material.

Quantitative estimate - Positive hits: 4 - Negative hits: 2 - Total hits: 6 - Positive percentage: 67%; Negative: 33%

Why this rating - Pedagogy shows classical and Charlotte Mason influences with strong inclusive practices, but the explicit adoption of rigorous classical pedagogies (Socratic discussion in upper levels, memorization-and-speech cadence, and the Scholé-style contemplation) is not clearly documented in the public materials. This yields SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL rather than CLASSICAL.

Cited elements - Charlotte Mason and Classical framing in pedagogy. - Mention of dyslexia remediation and one-on-one tutoring (reflecting memory/recall and technique-based practice).

Element 5: School Faculty — SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL

Evidence - Public materials identify leadership and faculty roles (Head of School, team, enrollment, mission, etc.). There is a sense of faculty as mentors aligned with the school's philosophy, but explicit articulation of a formalized "living curriculum" or portrait of what a teacher should be is not clearly documented in the accessible public text. The presence of a founder-led culture and a "team"/staff page signals a faculty-centered environment, but the precision of classical-faculty descriptors is limited in public materials.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive keywords found: mentor/teacher as guide, living-curriculum implications (inferred from mission and philosophy phrasing), team and founder leadership. - Negative keywords found: lack of explicit "portrait of a teacher," "faculty as living curriculum," or formal classical faculty development language.

Quantitative estimate - Positive hits: 3 - Negative hits: 2 - Total hits: 5 - Positive percentage: 60%; Negative: 40%

Why this rating - The faculty is portrayed as aligned with the school's mission and philosophy, but explicit classical-faculty descriptors and a clearly defined "living curriculum" are not overtly stated in public materials. This supports a SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL rating.

Cited elements - Mission/Philosophy emphasizing teachers' role and adherence to spiritual goals (implicit portrait of teacher as model/mentor). - Team/Head of School and enrollment pages referencing faculty and staff.

Element 6: Parents & Community — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The school foregrounds strong parent involvement through its philosophy of partnership with families and parental responsibility. The materials articulate parental roles as co-educators and emphasize that parents are part of the education process. There is an explicit emphasis on parental involvement and access to information (inclusion, monthly newsletters, enrollment processes, open campus moments in public-facing materials). This aligns with the classical emphasis on parental partnership and community engagement.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive keywords found: partnership with families, co-educators, parental formation, family involvement, open campus access, parental responsibility, community engagement. - Negative keywords found: None clearly evident in public materials.

Quantitative estimate - Positive hits: 5 - Negative hits: 0 - Total hits: 5 - Positive percentage: 100%; Negative: 0%

Why this rating - The school strongly emphasizes parent partnerships, parent formation, and active community involvement, which is a core hallmark of classical-leaning schools. The public materials position parents as co-educators and actively encourage family participation, which supports CLASSICAL in this category.

Cited elements - Partnership with families and parents as co-teachers; parent formation opportunities and open campus accessibility. - Mission-language referring to family-centered environment and parental involvement.

What Would Move the Needle

- Element 1 (Religious and Metaphysical Foundations): Explicitly articulate liturgical or communal practices (e.g., chapel/morning prayer formats, liturgical calendar, sacred music) and clearly label how virtues and transcendentals (truth, goodness, beauty) guide daily curriculum decisions. This would move Element 1 toward CLASSICAL by strengthening liturgical/connective practices and explicit metaphysical grounding.
- Element 3 (Curriculum): Publicly articulate the core classical curriculum components, including Seven Liberal Arts (grammar, logic, rhetoric; and if applicable Quadrivium components), Great Books or primary texts, and clear integration of history within the curriculum (not merely as a separate subject). This would raise Element 3 from SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL toward CLASSICAL by aligning with canonical classical curricular standards.
- Element 4 (Pedagogy): Introduce and describe explicit use of Socratic pedagogy in upper grades, structured seminars or debates, and a clear pathway to rhetoric training (speeches, declamation). Also publish a clear statement on Scholé/restful elements and contemplative routines to illustrate balance between rest and rigor.
- Element 5 (Faculty): Publish a formal “portrait of a teacher” and a living-curriculum framework showing how teachers serve as the core of the school’s classical formation. Include teacher professional development grounded in classical pedagogy and ongoing faculty seminars on Great Books or classical methodology.
- Element 6 (Parents & Community): Expand parent-formation initiatives (book studies, classical education seminars, family liturgies) and establish a structured open-visit policy with a visible calendar of parent-partner activities to deepen the parent-school partnership.
- Across categories: Create a consolidated, public-facing articulation of the school’s classical philosophy with explicit references to traditional classical terms (Great Books, Trivium/Quadrivium, Scholé, Socratic dialogue) while maintaining the Charlotte Mason elements and inclusion commitments. This would enhance coherence across the six categories and align the school more fully with the classical rubric.

Appendix

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE DISCLAIMER

This audit was conducted using artificial intelligence tools (including large language models and automated web-analysis scripts) to evaluate the extent to which school websites reflect or incorporate recognized principles of classical education (e.g., the trivium, emphasis on truth/beauty/goodness, integration of great books, Latin/classical languages, Socratic method, rigorous academics, moral/character formation, etc.).

Important Limitations and Caveats

1. Automated Nature: The analysis relies on AI interpretation of publicly-accessible school website content as of the date of the audit. It does not involve direct contact with schools, review of internal documents, classroom observation, or verification of curriculum implementation beyond what is stated or implied on the website.
2. Probabilistic Results: Scores and assessments are probabilistic and reflect the AI's best interpretation of available text and site structure. They are not infallible and may miss nuance, context, or recent changes not yet reflected online.
3. Subjectivity of Classical Education: "Classical Education" encompasses a range of traditions and interpretations (e.g., Dorothy Sayers' trivium model, Classical Christian Education, Great Books programs, etc.). The Humanitas Institute Audit of the Six Elements of Classical Education uses a broad, consensus-based framework derived from prominent classical education organizations and thought leaders. Reasonable people may disagree on weighting or inclusion of specific criteria.
4. No Official Endorsement or Certification: Results do not constitute official endorsement, accreditation, or certification by any classical education organization. They are provided for informational and research purposes only.
5. Potential for Error: Websites may be incomplete, poorly worded, or temporarily inaccurate. Conversely, sophisticated marketing language may create false positives. Human review by parents, educators, or classical education experts is strongly recommended before drawing final conclusions about any school.
6. Data Privacy and Ethics: Only publicly available information was analyzed. No attempts were made to access password-protected areas or collect personal data.
7. No Liability: The authors, developers, and distributors of this audit assume no liability for decisions made on the basis of these results. Users are solely responsible for their own due diligence.

By reading or using this document, you acknowledge and accept the limitations described above.