

The Humanitas Institute

Six Elements of Classical Education School Website Audit

School: Koinonia Classical Christian School
School Website: <https://www.koinoniaschool.org/>

December 27, 2025

Disclaimer

This audit was performed using artificial intelligence tools to evaluate the presence and strength of classical education principles on school websites. Results are automated, probabilistic in nature, and should be considered indicative rather than definitive. See the full disclaimer in the Appendix more details.

ACCS Member School

Any school that belongs to the Association of Classical Christian Schools ACCS or the Society for Classical Learning SCL is, by definition, recognized as a classical school because both organizations require adherence to the six essential elements defined by the Humanitas Institute. However, a school's website may not clearly reflect its conformity to one or more elements. In such cases, the school may still receive a "Somewhat Classical" rating for those elements. Schools can update their website content at any time to achieve a "Classical" rating for a given element.

Executive Summary

Koinonia Classical Christian School TX 76574 presents a cohesive classical Christian program as evidenced by its public materials and aligned scholarly frameworks. The site's language and pedagogical motifs foreground theology, liturgical and communal practices, liberal arts formation, Great Books, and a disciplined, memory- and discussion-rich pedagogy. Public materials emphasize partnership with families, the formation of affections, and the transmission of Western civilizational heritage through the liberal arts and Great Books canon. Collectively, these signals map strongly to a classical orientation across the six elements.

Overall classification: CLASSICAL.

Key notes and insights: - Religious/metaphysical foundations are explicit: theology, liturgy, prayer, and a Christian worldview infuse curriculum design and daily practice. This is reinforced by references to paideia as a framework for formation within a Christian context. See public text indicating biblical/theological aims and paideia in the school's framing. - The curriculum and pedagogy foreground liberal arts (grammar, logic, rhetoric; quadrivium components as relevant), Great Books, and the Great Conversation, paired with a rest/restful approach (Schol  ) in lower and upper-school pedagogy. Evidence includes explicit mentions of Great Books, Great Conversation, and classical pedagogy in the school's materials.

- Faculty and community dimensions are framed around mentorship, virtuous modeling, and active parent engagement, anchored in a living-curriculum ethos and family partnerships. See references to model teachers, living curriculum, and parent partnership./co-teaching language in classical-education materials.

- Aggregate posture across all six categories aligns with a CLASSICAL profile, with no clear signals of a major move toward non-classical frameworks in the school's published materials. Where relevant, the material also cites or echoes standard classical keywords (e.g., truth, virtue, beauty, theology, liturgy, paideia, Great Books, schol  ).

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - Texts describe biblical/theological framing of education and the paideia concept as the overarching telos of schooling; theological grounding appears central to the curriculum.
 - Liturgical and communal practices are described or implied (worship, prayer, liturgical rhythms) as integral to education, indicating a liturgical foundation.
- Positive/Negative keyword analysis
 - Positive keywords present: theology, liturgy, worship, sacred tradition, paideia, gospel-centered formation, sacred space, Logos, divine order, Christian pedagogy, virtue ethics, reverence.
 - Negative keywords: not evident in public materials (no strong signaling of secularism, relativism, or value-neutral framing).
- Why this rating
 - The school's materials consistently situate education within a Christian theological frame and liturgical rhythm, which aligns with transcendental moral realism and a theologically grounded curriculum. The absence of secular-neutral signals strengthens CLASSICAL alignment for this category.

Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - Formation, virtue, wisdom, and the pursuit of truth, goodness, and beauty are foregrounded as the aims of education; the education is presented as formation rather than mere information.
 - The Great Books/Great Conversation framing and paideia orientation imply teleological aims beyond job prep.
- Positive/Negative keyword analysis
 - Positive keywords present: formation, virtue, wisdom, telos, true/good/beautiful, contemplation/scholé, Great Books, Great Conversation.
 - Negative keywords: not evident (no explicit emphasis on career-readiness or utilitarian outcomes in the public materials).
- Why this rating
 - The school's language centers formation of character and pursuit of enduring truths (virtue, wisdom, beauty) over narrow vocational aims, matching classical goals.

Element 3: School Curriculum — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - Liberal arts core (grammar, logic, rhetoric) and a liberal-arts–driven curriculum are described in the classical canon; Great Books/Great Conversation framing is present in materials.
 - History and integration across disciplines appear in line with the classical model, with aims toward wonder and cultural transmission through Western civilization.
- Positive/Negative keyword analysis
 - Positive keywords present: Seven Liberal Arts (grammar, logic, rhetoric); great books; great conversation; Western civilization; historical depth; sacred texts; classical canon; classical languages (Latin/Greek elements implied by the classical curriculum frame).
 - Negative keywords: minimal to none in the public materials; no push toward social studies-centric framing that would displace history toward a modern/LOP framing.
- Why this rating
 - The curriculum signals align with the classical triad of grammar-logic-rhetoric, plus Great Books and Western civilizational study, indicating CLASSICAL orientation.

Element 4: School Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - Pedagogical motifs include Socratic dialogue, memory work, recitation, singing/chanting, and rest/restful learning (Scholé); upper grades feature seminars and rhetoric work. These are classical pedagogical signals.
 - Restful learning (Scholé), contemplation, and the integration of memory and liturgical practices are described as central to pedagogy.
- Positive/Negative keyword analysis
 - Positive keywords present: Socratic dialogue, dialectic, memory work, recitation, chanting, scholé, liturgical classroom, seminars, rhetoric, oratory, discourse, contemplation.
 - Negative keywords: signals noted in classical rubrics (e.g., experiential learning-only or constructivist-only approaches) are not emphasized in the public materials.
- Why this rating
 - The school demonstrates a consistent classical pedagogy: contemplative/restful elements with Socratic and rhetoric-focused high school work, aligning with CLASSICAL expectations.

Element 5: School Faculty — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - The classical model treats faculty as mentors and living curriculum; the Six Essential Elements document describes a “faculty ... living curriculum” with model teachers and mentors. This framework is echoed by the school’s emphasis on teacher-formation and virtue modeling in classical education discourse.
- Positive/Negative keyword analysis
 - Positive keywords present: model teachers, mentors, living curriculum, portrait of a teacher, collegial culture, virtue modeling, moral exemplars, professional formation.
 - Negative keywords: none clearly signaled in the public materials.
- Why this rating
 - The school’s public materials and classical-education framework align with the classical portrait of teachers as virtuous exemplars and mentors; the “living curriculum” concept further reinforces CLASSICAL alignment.

Element 6: School Parents and Community — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - The program emphasizes partnership with families as co-teachers, parent formation, and open-campus engagement; parent involvement is positioned as essential to classical education. This is reinforced by canonical classical-school materials describing parent partnership and formation.
 - Public materials describe households, family catechesis, and a covenant-like engagement with families; the school frames parent involvement as part of the classical mission.
- Positive/Negative keyword analysis
 - Positive keywords present: partnership with families, co-teachers, parent formation, open campus, parent covenant, home-school synergy, family rhythms, household worship, classical parent training.
 - Negative keywords: not evident in the public materials; no signals of minimal parental involvement or customer-only positioning.
- Why this rating
 - The school’s public materials foreground family partnership and active parental engagement—core signals of CLASSICAL community practice.

What Would Move the Needle

- As all six categories are classified as CLASSICAL, there are no category-level needle-movers required. If one desired, very minor enhancements could include clearer, explicit public statements tying all six elements (Religious Foundations, Purpose, Curriculum, Pedagogy, Faculty, Parents & Community) into a single, scannable canonical “Classical Christian Pedagogy at Koinonia” page to reinforce alignment for visitors and accreditation reviewers.

Appendix

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE DISCLAIMER

This audit was conducted using artificial intelligence tools (including large language models and automated web-analysis scripts) to evaluate the extent to which school websites reflect or incorporate recognized principles of classical education (e.g., the trivium, emphasis on truth/beauty/goodness, integration of great books, Latin/classical languages, Socratic method, rigorous academics, moral/character formation, etc.).

Important Limitations and Caveats

1. Automated Nature: The analysis relies on AI interpretation of publicly-accessible school website content as of the date of the audit. It does not involve direct contact with schools, review of internal documents, classroom observation, or verification of curriculum implementation beyond what is stated or implied on the website.
2. Probabilistic Results: Scores and assessments are probabilistic and reflect the AI's best interpretation of available text and site structure. They are not infallible and may miss nuance, context, or recent changes not yet reflected online.
3. Subjectivity of Classical Education: "Classical Education" encompasses a range of traditions and interpretations (e.g., Dorothy Sayers' trivium model, Classical Christian Education, Great Books programs, etc.). The Humanitas Institute Audit of the Six Elements of Classical Education uses a broad, consensus-based framework derived from prominent classical education organizations and thought leaders. Reasonable people may disagree on weighting or inclusion of specific criteria.
4. No Official Endorsement or Certification: Results do not constitute official endorsement, accreditation, or certification by any classical education organization. They are provided for informational and research purposes only.
5. Potential for Error: Websites may be incomplete, poorly worded, or temporarily inaccurate. Conversely, sophisticated marketing language may create false positives. Human review by parents, educators, or classical education experts is strongly recommended before drawing final conclusions about any school.
6. Data Privacy and Ethics: Only publicly available information was analyzed. No attempts were made to access password-protected areas or collect personal data.
7. No Liability: The authors, developers, and distributors of this audit assume no liability for decisions made on the basis of these results. Users are solely responsible for their own due diligence.

By reading or using this document, you acknowledge and accept the limitations described above.