

The Humanitas Institute

Six Elements of Classical Education School Website Audit

School: Legacy Christian Academy
School Website: <https://www.legacyca.com/>

December 27, 2025

Disclaimer

This audit was performed using artificial intelligence tools to evaluate the presence and strength of classical education principles on school websites. Results are automated, probabilistic in nature, and should be considered indicative rather than definitive. See the full disclaimer in the Appendix more details.

ACCS Member School

Any school that belongs to the Association of Classical Christian Schools ACCS or the Society for Classical Learning SCL is, by definition, recognized as a classical school because both organizations require adherence to the six essential elements defined by the Humanitas Institute. However, a school's website may not clearly reflect its conformity to one or more elements. In such cases, the school may still receive a "Somewhat Classical" rating for those elements. Schools can update their website content at any time to achieve a "Classical" rating for a given element.

Executive Summary

Legacy Christian Academy (Texas, 75034) presents a clear Christian formation orientation with explicit references to Biblical worldview, faith integration, and covenant-with-family community as core drivers of its program. Public materials emphasize a faith-based mission, mission statements, and parent engagement, which align strongly with the Religious and Metaphysical Foundations and Parents & Community elements of classical education. Evidence of formal classical curriculum components (e.g., Great Books, liberal arts framework) and explicit Socratic or memory-based pedagogy is less visible, which pulls the overall profile toward Not Classical in some categories. Taken together, the school demonstrates substantial classical-readiness in Religious & Metaphysical Foundations, and in its emphasis on formation of character and family partnership, but shows limited explicit documentation of core liberal-arts curricula and pedagogy commonly associated with classical schools. The aggregate assessment places Legacy Christian Academy as SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL.

Key insights: - Religious & Metaphysical Foundations are strongly represented via explicit faith language, Statement of Faith, integrated biblical worldview, and Covenant-family framing. Evidence includes explicit references to faith requirements and covenant partnership with families.

- School Purpose & Goal centers on formation and virtue within a Christian frame, supported by references to covenant relationships and community-oriented goals. The school's materials emphasize formation, faith, and character through its Promise and Portrait of a Graduate context. - Curriculum documentation is less explicit about liberal-arts foundations (grammar, logic, rhetoric; Great Books; Great Conversation) within public-facing materials, limiting a Strong Classical Curriculum signal. Public pages emphasize program areas (e.g., Journey/Professional Schools, Spanish Immersion) rather than classical-trivium/quadrivium content. - Pedagogy signals (Socratic seminars, memory-work, scholé) are not clearly evidenced in the public materials; the site focuses more on program offerings, family involvement, and events than explicit classical pedagogical methods. - Faculty signals are present (Faculty & Staff pages), and there is an emphasis on community and covenant; however, explicit descriptions of faculty as "living curriculum" or virtue-models are not overtly documented in public content. - Parents & Community are robustly represented through explicit partnership language (co-teachers, parent involvement, LCA Cares, PTG/PTF, and community-engagement content). This aligns strongly with classical education's emphasis on parental formation and partnership.

ABSTRACT: Legacy Christian Academy demonstrates CLASSICAL alignment in Religious & Metaphysical Foundations, and in Parents & Community through strong parental partnership and formation signals, while Curricular and Pedagogical signals are weaker and limit a full Classical classification. The overall assessment is SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL.

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The school emphasizes a Biblical worldview and faith integration across the program, with explicit references to Statement of Faith and Covenant relationships with families. - Public materials cite an integrated biblical worldview and covenant partnership with families, indicating transcendentally anchored moral aims. - Community-facing materials discuss faith-led activities (Prayer Walks and liturgical-like community practices) and the Covenant relationship language between family and school.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive indicators found: faith integration, biblical worldview, statement of faith, covenant relationship, prayer-related community practices, reverence toward sacred life (implied via Catholic/Protestant liturgical cues). - Negative indicators: none evident in public materials (no explicit relativism or secular ethics signals present in the school materials).

Why this rating - The school foregrounds theology and a transcendent moral frame, and publicly positions itself as a Covenant School with a Biblical worldview. This aligns strongly with Positive keywords in Religious & Metaphysical Foundations (truth, goodness, beauty, theology, liturgy, reverence, covenantal community). The presence of explicit faith language and worship-like community practices supports a CLASSICAL rating here.

Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The Legacy Promise and Portrait of a Graduate framing indicate formation (virtue, wisdom, character) as core educational aims rather than solely job-preparation outcomes. The public site emphasizes formation and virtue within a Christian formation context. - Parental covenant language and the integrated Biblical worldview support the telos-oriented, formation-focused purpose typical of classical aims.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive indicators: formation, virtue, human flourishing, classical mission, telos, contemplation, liberal education, Great Conversation (as a concept in classical lexicon if aligned with formation). - Negative indicators: absence of explicit job-preparation or workforce-readiness framing in primary public-facing materials; however, some program pages (e.g., college counseling) imply college-readiness but do not dominate the site's stated purpose.

Why this rating - The school's emphasis on formation, virtue, and integrated faith aligns with classical aims of education as character and wisdom formation rather than a pure workforce-preparation focus. This supports a CLASSICAL classification for Element 2.

Element 3: School Curriculum — NOT CLASSICAL

Evidence - Public materials focus on program areas (Lower/Middle/Upper School, Spanish Immersion, Journey Program, Professional Schools Program, athletics, arts) rather than explicit Liberal Arts structure (grammar, logic, rhetoric), Great Books, or a Great Conversation framework. There is no clear listing of Great Books or explicit grammar–logic–rhetoric sequencing on the public-facing materials.

- The site highlights college counseling and other modern-programmatic offerings rather than a classical core curriculum.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive indicators: None explicit in the publicly visible materials for the seven liberal arts (grammar, logic, rhetoric; Great Books; Quadrivium). - Negative indicators: The absence of explicit Great Books, Great Conversation, Latin/Greek classical-language focus, and a historically grounded curriculum structure (as described in classical lexicons) weighs toward a NOT CLASSICAL signal for Curriculum.

Why this rating - Based on the public-facing evidence, the curriculum appears modern and programmatic rather than centered on classical liberal arts and Great Books. The absence of explicit trivium/quadrivium ordering or Great Books recitations suggests NOT CLASSICAL for Element 3.

Element 4: Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — NOT CLASSICAL

Evidence - Public materials do not clearly describe Socratic seminars, dialectic teaching, or routine use of memory work, recitation, or scholé-as-restful pedagogy. The site foregrounds program offerings, campus life, and family engagement rather than explicit classical pedagogy, and there is no explicit mention of Socratic discussions in the site's public content.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive indicators: If present, would include Socratic dialogue, memory work, chanting, scholé-wisdom traditions, and restfulness in pedagogy. The site does not clearly display these signals. - Negative indicators: Absence of explicit classical methods (Socratic seminars, dialectic, narrations, chanting as memory aids) and a lack of restfulness or scholé-oriented pedagogy signals.

Why this rating - The Pedagogy category lacks explicit classical teaching methods in publicly accessible site content, pointing to NOT CLASSICAL in this category.

Element 5: Faculty — SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL

Evidence - The site has a Faculty & Staff section and references to leadership and mission (The Legacy Promise, Portrait of a Graduate). There is evidence of faculty as part of the school's community and mission, but explicit classical-character descriptions like "living curriculum," "models of virtue," or "portrait of a teacher" are not overtly documented in the public materials.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive indicators: Mentions of faculty as part of the school's covenant-based community; "Portrait of a Graduate" framing can imply standards for teacher roles, and the existence of a dedicated faculty page signals a focus on teacher presence as part of the educational experience. - Negative indicators: Absence of explicit classical faculty descriptors (e.g., "models of virtue," "living curriculum," or teacher-student mentorship language) in public-facing content.

Why this rating - While there is clear faculty presence and alignment with faith-based mission, explicit classical-faculty descriptors are not clearly documented, yielding a SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL rating rather than CLASSICAL.

Element 6: Parents & Community — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Strong partner-with-parents framing appears across multiple pages (Parents section, LCA Storytellers, PT/Volunteer channels, and parent-facing content such as LCA Cares, and community engagement). The site presents parenting as co-education with explicit opportunities for parent involvement and formation. - Language around open involvement, parent groups, and covenant relationships with families appears, indicating a robust parent-partnership model. The "Abro" family narrative emphasizes integrated biblical worldview in family-school collaboration. - New Families, Parents archives, and "LCA Storytellers: Abbink Family" posts show ongoing parent engagement and family-centered narratives.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis - Positive indicators: Partnership with families; parent formation; parent involvement; open-campus/visits; family covenant; reading groups and seminars indicated by "Parents" content. - Negative indicators: None evident in public materials (no consumer/customer-only language, no overt disengagement of families).

Why this rating - The school demonstrates explicit partnership with parents and a culture of family involvement consistent with classical-education expectations for Parents & Community. This yields a CLASSICAL signal for Element 6.

Aggregate assessment - Element 1: CLASSICAL - Element 2: CLASSICAL - Element 3: NOT CLASSICAL - Element 4: NOT CLASSICAL - Element 5: SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL - Element 6: CLASSICAL

Overall classification: SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL

What Would Move the Needle

- Element 3 (Curriculum): Introduce explicit classical liberal arts framing (grammar, logic, rhetoric) within the curriculum and publicly document Great Books or Great Conversation components, Latin/Greek language study, and a clear history-focused Western civilization arc. Publicly publish a formal statement of liberal-arts objectives and a sequence showing the trivium/quadrivium alignment, as well as references to primary sources or great books. This would shift Curriculum to CLASSICAL.

-
- Element 4 (Pedagogy): Publicly articulate and implement classical pedagogy (Socratic seminars or dialectic discussions, narration/recitation, memory work, and scholé days). Publish faculty development materials or examples of classical pedagogy in action (e.g., seminar formats, student speeches, or rhetorical projects) to strengthen Pedagogy's alignment.
 - Element 5 (Faculty): Explicitly describe the faculty as living curriculum and as models of virtue, including a portrait of a teacher and a culture of collegial mentorship. Publish statements or descriptions showing teacher formation in classical pedagogy and virtue modeling to elevate Faculty to CLASSICAL.

Appendix

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE DISCLAIMER

This audit was conducted using artificial intelligence tools (including large language models and automated web-analysis scripts) to evaluate the extent to which school websites reflect or incorporate recognized principles of classical education (e.g., the trivium, emphasis on truth/beauty/goodness, integration of great books, Latin/classical languages, Socratic method, rigorous academics, moral/character formation, etc.).

Important Limitations and Caveats

1. Automated Nature: The analysis relies on AI interpretation of publicly-accessible school website content as of the date of the audit. It does not involve direct contact with schools, review of internal documents, classroom observation, or verification of curriculum implementation beyond what is stated or implied on the website.
2. Probabilistic Results: Scores and assessments are probabilistic and reflect the AI's best interpretation of available text and site structure. They are not infallible and may miss nuance, context, or recent changes not yet reflected online.
3. Subjectivity of Classical Education: "Classical Education" encompasses a range of traditions and interpretations (e.g., Dorothy Sayers' trivium model, Classical Christian Education, Great Books programs, etc.). The Humanitas Institute Audit of the Six Elements of Classical Education uses a broad, consensus-based framework derived from prominent classical education organizations and thought leaders. Reasonable people may disagree on weighting or inclusion of specific criteria.
4. No Official Endorsement or Certification: Results do not constitute official endorsement, accreditation, or certification by any classical education organization. They are provided for informational and research purposes only.
5. Potential for Error: Websites may be incomplete, poorly worded, or temporarily inaccurate. Conversely, sophisticated marketing language may create false positives. Human review by parents, educators, or classical education experts is strongly recommended before drawing final conclusions about any school.
6. Data Privacy and Ethics: Only publicly available information was analyzed. No attempts were made to access password-protected areas or collect personal data.
7. No Liability: The authors, developers, and distributors of this audit assume no liability for decisions made on the basis of these results. Users are solely responsible for their own due diligence.

By reading or using this document, you acknowledge and accept the limitations described above.