

The Humanitas Institute

Six Elements of Classical Education School Website Audit

School: Providence Academy

School Website: <https://providenceacademy.com/>

December 22, 2025

Disclaimer

This audit was performed using artificial intelligence tools to evaluate the presence and strength of classical education principles on school websites. Results are automated, probabilistic in nature, and should be considered indicative rather than definitive. See the full disclaimer in the Appendix more details.

ACCS Member School

Any school that belongs to the Association of Classical Christian Schools ACCS or the Society for Classical Learning SCL is, by definition, recognized as a classical school because both organizations require adherence to the six essential elements defined by the Humanitas Institute. However, a school's website may not clearly reflect its conformity to one or more elements. In such cases, the school may still receive a "Somewhat Classical" rating for those elements. Schools can update their website content at any time to achieve a "Classical" rating for a given element.

Executive Summary

Providence Academy (Johnson City, TN, 37615) presents a robust Classical Christian program consistently aligned with the Six Essential Elements of a Classical School rubric. Public materials from the school emphasize a biblically-based, Christ-centered, classical education, a strong sense of formation and virtue, engagement with Great Books and the liberal arts, Socratic and rhetorical pedagogy, a defined and aspirational faculty culture, and an explicit partnership with parents and the local community. Across six rubric categories, the school demonstrates strong Classical indicators, with explicit evidence of religious foundations, formation-focused goals, liberal-arts curriculum, dialogical pedagogy, model faculty, and proactive parent/community engagement. In aggregate, Providence Academy ranks CLASSICAL.

Key supporting signals drawn from the school's public materials include: a mission statement anchored in biblical/theological formation; explicit commitment to "Great Books," Socratic dialogue, rhetoric, and disciplined inquiry; references to chapels, worship, and discipleship; and calls for parent participation as co-teachers. The school repeatedly frames education as formation rather than mere information, and positions itself as a partner with families in cultivating intellectual and spiritual formation.

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

- Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL Evidence shows explicit theological grounding (biblically-based, Christ-centered, worship/chapels, discipleship), with communal worship practices. Positive keywords strongly prevalent; no clear negative indicators.
- Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL The school's stated aim centers on spiritual maturity and academic excellence through a biblically-based, classical framework, emphasizing formation (not merely information). Keywords like formation, truth/goodness/beauty appear in the public materials. Positive indicators are dominant; few to no negative ones.
- Element 3: School Curriculum — CLASSICAL Evidence of liberal-arts orientation, Great Books, and a Great-Conversation ethos; explicit mention of formation and wonder in learning; history integrated across coursework. Positive signals (Great Books, liberal arts, Great Conversation, history integration) are present; minimal negative signals.
- Element 4: School Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — CLASSICAL Pedagogy described as Socratic dialogue, seminars, debates, and rhetoric training; upper- and lower-school practices reflect a range from contemplative to rigorous inquiry. Positive indicators are strong; limited explicit evidence of non-classical approaches.
- Element 5: School Faculty — CLASSICAL The public materials portray faculty as mentors and living curriculum, with emphasis on character, virtue, and the teacher-student relationship, plus evidence of teacher vetting (faculty applications). Positive indicators dominate; no clear anti-classical signals.
- Element 6: Parents & Community — CLASSICAL The school highlights a deliberate partnership with parents (co-teachers), parent education, and welcoming visits; materials convey family-centered, engaged community values. Positive signals are strong; no disqualifying signals.

What would move the needle (for SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL cases) - Not applicable here, as the aggregate and category-by-category signals strongly meet CLASSICAL criteria. If any minor evolution were desired, it would be to produce more explicit, line-by-line mappings to Trivium components (grammar/logic/ rhetoric) across all grade bands and to illuminate direct “Great Books” reading lists by grade level. However, current materials already indicate strong alignment with Great Books, Socratic pedagogy, and liberal arts formation.

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Public materials frame Providence Academy as biblically-based and Christ-centered, with explicit references to worship and communal practices (e.g., chapels, prayer, worship, discipleship). - Statements of faith and core values indicate theological grounding and a God-centered worldview integrated across curriculum and community life. - Memorable thematic phrases include “biblically-based, Christ-centered, classical education,” and “weekly chapels” in school life descriptions.

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive keywords present: biblically-based; Christ-centered; gospel; biblical worldview; worship; chapels; discipleship; Word of God. - Negative keywords present: none evident in public-facing materials regarding religious foundations.

Quantitative estimate - Positive keywords detected: 8–9 (e.g., biblically-based, Christ-centered, biblical worldview, worship, chapels, discipleship, Word of God, gospel). Negative keywords: 0. - Ratio: 100% Positive, 0 Negative.

Why this rating - The materials repeatedly foreground a theological framework and liturgical/community practices, consistent with Transcendental moral realism and Grounded in Theology, and with Liturgical/-communal practices. The explicit Christ-centered, biblical framing and worship elements align strongly with the Positive Keyword indicators for this category.

Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The school’s stated mission emphasizes spiritual maturity and academic excellence through biblically-based, Christ-centered, classical education. This is a formation-focused purpose rather than mere job preparation. - Expected Student Outcomes specify spiritual growth, worldview formation, and intellectual virtues (e.g., faith, biblical discernment, defending a Christian worldview). - Public materials describe formation as central to education (formation of character and intellect, rather than information-only pedagogy).

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive keywords present: formation; virtue (through related terms like godliness, integrity, self-control); truth/beauty/goodness in the sense of True/Good/Beautiful; spiritual maturity; worldview formation. - Negative keywords present: none clearly evident in public-facing materials.

Quantitative estimate - Positive keywords detected: 6–8 (formation; virtue; truth; goodness; beauty; worldview; spiritual maturity). - Negative keywords: 0. - Ratio: 100% Positive, 0 Negative.

Why this rating - The school’s stated aim centers on formation and virtue through a biblical, classical framework, with explicit language about truth, goodness, and beauty as real, knowable ideals, and about forming character, not solely preparing for work. This strongly matches the Positive keyword indicators for this category.

Element 3: School Curriculum — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Public materials reference Great Books and the Great Conversation as core to curriculum, indicating a liberal-arts orientation: “engagement with the Great Books,” and “classical education.” - The site describes the curriculum as rooted in the liberal arts tradition, with emphasis on critical thinking, reading, writing, speaking, and disciplined inquiry (including engagement with classics). - History is treated as a central thread across subjects, not merely as social studies, and the program emphasizes integration of disciplines (liberal arts, classical curriculum).

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive keywords present: Great Books; Great Conversation; liberal arts; history integrated; contemplation/wonder; rhetoric; grammar/logic/rhetoric (Socratic methods); interdisciplinary connections (integration of subjects). - Negative keywords present: 0. (No explicit “textbook-based” or “STEM-focused” signals in public-facing materials.)

Quantitative estimate - Positive keywords detected: 6–8 (Great Books, Great Conversation, liberal arts, history integrated, contemplation/wonder, rhetoric, Socratic methods). - Negative keywords: 0. - Ratio: 100% Positive, 0 Negative.

Why this rating - The curriculum language aligns with liberal-arts formation, Great Books, and integrated history/literature/philosophy/science discourse typical of classical education. The public materials underscore Great Books engagement, contemplation/wonder, and a classical approach to learning.

Element 4: Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Pedagogy is described through Socratic dialogue, seminars, debates, and rhetoric training, with upper-level students engaging in rhetoric and public speaking. This mirrors classical pedagogy across grade bands. - Materials emphasize lower- and middle-school practices that foster memory, wonder, and delight, and upper-school experience with rigorous discussion and rhetorical exercises. - Public materials explicitly place Socratic discussion in the upper grades, and rhetoric training across the program.

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive keywords present: Socratic dialogue; seminars; debates; rhetoric; public speaking; wonder/contemplation; disciplined memory (memory work) and conscious training in argumentation. - Negative keywords present: none clearly evident in public materials.

Quantitative estimate - Positive keywords detected: 6–8 (Socratic dialogue; seminars; debates; rhetoric training; public speaking; contemplation/wonder; memory work; disciplined inquiry). - Negative keywords: 0. - Ratio: 100% Positive, 0 Negative.

Why this rating - The school's pedagogy is clearly aligned with classical teaching methods, including Socratic inquiry and rhetoric-driven presentation, alongside ways to cultivate memory and contemplation. This matches the Positive keyword indicators for Pedagogy.

Element 5: School Faculty — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Faculty are portrayed as mentors who model virtue and knowledge, and who form the living curriculum, with a culture of teacher-student partnership and character formation. The public materials frame teachers as central agents in the education process. - There are explicit references to faculty/staff materials and the concept of teachers as the core of the school, and there are job postings that highlight teacher qualifications and a Christ-centered, classical approach. This demonstrates alignment with classical faculty expectations.

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive keywords present: model teachers; mentors; living curriculum; teachers as core of the school; teacher-student partnership; discipleship/mentorship language. - Negative keywords present: 0.

Quantitative estimate - Positive keywords detected: 5–6 (model teachers; mentors; living curriculum; core of the school; teacher-student partnership; discipleship language). - Negative keywords: 0. - Ratio: 100% Positive, 0 Negative.

Why this rating - The public-facing materials position the faculty as the living embodiment of the curriculum and as mentors who guide character and intellect, aligning with Classical expectations for the faculty category.

Element 6: School Parents and Community — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The materials emphasize partnership with parents as co-teachers, with parental involvement emphasized in multiple sections (e.g., joint family involvement, parent education, and opportunities to engage with the school). - The school promotes community activities and accessibility for parents (e.g., tours, admissions inquiries, and parent resources) and explicitly invites parent involvement in school life. - Public materials describe a family-centered approach, with a focus on forming a God-centered community that includes parental participation and education about classical education.

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive keywords present: partnership with parents; co-teachers; parent education; parent visits; family involvement; community life. - Negative keywords present: 0.

Quantitative estimate - Positive keywords detected: 5–6 (partner with parents; co-teachers; parent education; family involvement; open invitations for visits; community life). - Negative keywords: 0. - Ratio: 100% Positive, 0 Negative.

Why this rating - The school explicitly frames parents as collaborators and co-educators, with active parent engagement and education about classical education, which aligns with the Positive keyword indicators for Parents & Community.

Appendix

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE DISCLAIMER

This audit was conducted using artificial intelligence tools (including large language models and automated web-analysis scripts) to evaluate the extent to which school websites reflect or incorporate recognized principles of classical education (e.g., the trivium, emphasis on truth/beauty/goodness, integration of great books, Latin/classical languages, Socratic method, rigorous academics, moral/character formation, etc.).

Important Limitations and Caveats

1. Automated Nature: The analysis relies on AI interpretation of publicly-accessible school website content as of the date of the audit. It does not involve direct contact with schools, review of internal documents, classroom observation, or verification of curriculum implementation beyond what is stated or implied on the website.
2. Probabilistic Results: Scores and assessments are probabilistic and reflect the AI's best interpretation of available text and site structure. They are not infallible and may miss nuance, context, or recent changes not yet reflected online.
3. Subjectivity of Classical Education: "Classical Education" encompasses a range of traditions and interpretations (e.g., Dorothy Sayers' trivium model, Classical Christian Education, Great Books programs, etc.). The Humanitas Institute Audit of the Six Elements of Classical Education uses a broad, consensus-based framework derived from prominent classical education organizations and thought leaders. Reasonable people may disagree on weighting or inclusion of specific criteria.
4. No Official Endorsement or Certification: Results do not constitute official endorsement, accreditation, or certification by any classical education organization. They are provided for informational and research purposes only.
5. Potential for Error: Websites may be incomplete, poorly worded, or temporarily inaccurate. Conversely, sophisticated marketing language may create false positives. Human review by parents, educators, or classical education experts is strongly recommended before drawing final conclusions about any school.
6. Data Privacy and Ethics: Only publicly available information was analyzed. No attempts were made to access password-protected areas or collect personal data.
7. No Liability: The authors, developers, and distributors of this audit assume no liability for decisions made on the basis of these results. Users are solely responsible for their own due diligence.

By reading or using this document, you acknowledge and accept the limitations described above.