

The Humanitas Institute

Six Elements of Classical Education School Website Audit

School: Regent Preparatory School of Oklahoma
School Website: <https://rpsok.org/>

December 28, 2025

Disclaimer

This audit was performed using artificial intelligence tools to evaluate the presence and strength of classical education principles on school websites. Results are automated, probabilistic in nature, and should be considered indicative rather than definitive. See the full disclaimer in the Appendix for more details.

ACCS Member School

Any school that belongs to the Association of Classical Christian Schools (ACCS) or the Society for Classical Learning (SCL) is, by definition, recognized as a classical school because both organizations require adherence to the six essential elements defined by the Humanitas Institute. However, a school's website may not clearly reflect its conformity to one or more elements. In such cases, the school may still receive a "Somewhat Classical" rating for those elements. Schools can update their website content at any time to achieve a "Classical" rating for a given element.

Executive Summary

Regent Preparatory School of Oklahoma (Tulsa, 74133) presents a rigorous classical Christian program that aligns strongly with the Six Essential Elements of Classical Education. Across all six rubric categories, Regent demonstrates a coherent classical orientation: a theology-grounded, virtue-forming mission; a trivium-based curriculum with explicit grammar/logic/rhetoric progression and exposure to Great Books and Western tradition; a pedagogy that blends contemplative (Scholé) rhythms with Socratic inquiry and rhetorical training; a faculty culture described in terms of mentorship and living curriculum; and a robust, parent-partnered community with formal statements of faith and covenantal involvement.

- Overall classification by category: CLASSICAL for Categories 1–6.
- Executive takeaway: Regent exemplifies a fully Classical Christian school model rather than a mixed or weakly Classical approach. Its public materials repeatedly foreground truth, virtue, biblical authority, the trivium, Great Books, Socratic/vernacular rhetoric, and a parental partnership—core markers of the classical rubric. Evidence includes explicit mission language, the Portrait of a Graduate, Grammar/Logic/Rhetoric progression, Great Books lists, and formal parent covenants. See supporting sources cited in the respective category notes.

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - Regent explicitly identifies itself as a classical and Christian school rooted in biblical authority, with mission language centered on truth, goodness, and excellence in service to God and man. The Portrait of a Graduate states: “truth, goodness, and excellent” and that graduates should live in service to God and man; Regent is “an interdenominational, classical, Christian school,” with Scripture as the measure of truth.
 - Public materials foreground a biblically grounded worldview, statements of faith, and episcopal-style fidelity to Scripture as the measure of truth. The Academics page emphasizes a Christian education with biblical Christianity informing ancient history and culture via the trivium.
 - Fine Arts and Mission pages tie beauty and sacred music to God’s glory, reinforcing liturgical/cultural expressions as part of education.
- Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis
 - Positive keywords present: truth, goodness, beauty (in the sense of virtue and excellence), virtue, theologia/theology, sacred scripture, creed, liturgy/worship, reverence/wonder, Logos, God, Bible, Scripture, faith, theology, Christian worldview, Fidelis Veritati.
 - Negative keywords: not semantically present (no explicit relativism, secular humanism, or value-neutral signals in the public-facing materials). The lexicon’s negative signals are not evidenced in Regent’s public materials.
- Why this rating

- The school’s public text consistently anchors education in a Christian theological framework, with explicit biblical authority, virtues, and liturgical/covenantal language. The presence of “truth,” “God and Bible,” “theology,” and liturgical/institutional forms, combined with a clearly Christian mission, supports CLASSICAL rather than Not-Classical.
- Related lexicon alignment: Positive indicators such as theology/scripture, virtue, reverence/wonder, and liturgical practice align with the “Religious and Metaphysical Foundations” positives; lack of explicit negative signals reinforces CLASSICAL.
- Supporting sources: Portrait of a Graduate; Mission & Philosophy; Academics; Great Books/Trivium framing; Fine Arts; Parental Covenant references.

Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - Mission statement highlights formation of virtue and wisdom, with explicit aim to know, love, and practice that which is true, good, and excellent, and to prepare students to live purposefully in service to God and man. This emphasizes formation over mere information.
 - The school’s stated values are anchored in “Truth,” “Tradition,” and “Training” within Regent’s own framework, signaling formation of character and formation of affections through a classical Christian telos.
 - The Portrait of a Graduate calls for virtue, mature character, and a unified Christian worldview across disciplines, reinforcing formation as a primary telos rather than utilitarian workforce preparation.
- Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis
 - Positive keywords present: formation, virtue, wisdom, liberal education, telos, scholé, contemplation/rest, great conversation, classical heritage, human flourishing, moral imagination, truth/goodness/beauty (as trans-historical ideals).
 - Negative keywords present: explicit workforce- or college-readiness framing is not foregrounded in the school’s core purpose; the catalog of public materials emphasizes formation rather than job-training.
- Why this rating
 - Regent’s stated purpose centers on human formation and the pursuit of true, good, and beautiful, not solely on job readiness. The explicit telos language and scholé/restful cadence align with CLASSICAL as a primary driver of education, not a secondary goal.
- Supporting sources: Mission & Philosophy; Portrait of a Graduate; Admissions language; Curriculum framing.

Element 3: Curriculum — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - The curriculum is explicitly built around the trivium: grammar (grades 1–6), logic (grades 7–8), rhetoric (grades 9–12). Curriculum maps and course descriptions are aligned with grammar/logic/rhetoric sequencing.
 - History and Western civilization are central across disciplines; ancient history, languages, and culture are studied in light of biblical Christianity; emphasis on Western traditional curriculum and the Great Books/primary sources is evident (the School of Rhetoric section lists texts like The Iliad, The Odyssey, Plato, Augustine, The Divine Comedy, etc.). ☐filecite☐turn10☐
 - Great Books/primary sources are explicitly present (e.g., The Bible, The Iliad, The Odyssey, Herodotus, Plato, Augustine, Dante, etc.). The rhetoric program culminates in senior-level work and classical training. ☐filecite☐turn10☐
- Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis
 - Positive keywords present: grammar, logic, rhetoric; trivium; great books; primary sources; Western civilization; classical languages (Latin/Greek in examples); history; hymnody/art in the context of fine arts; recitation/narration; Socratic dialogue (in student-readings and classroom activities).

- Negative keywords: no explicit material indicating a replacement with social-studies framing or a heavy shift toward project-based learning as the core; the public content emphasizes classical/historic texts rather than a social-studies renaming.
- Why this rating
 - Regent’s program is deliberately classical in content and structure: the grammar/logic/rhetoric progression, heavy emphasis on master texts, and a clear Great Books orientation support CLAS-SICAL.
- Supporting sources: Academics; Curriculum Maps; School of Rhetoric materials; Fine Arts integration (as a facet of a classical education). ☐filecite☐turn10☐

Element 4: Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - Pedagogical approach includes a mix of Socratic discussion in upper levels (Socratic debate in rhetoric and philosophy contexts), memorization/recitation, and imitation of exemplar texts (recognizable classical pedagogy). The School of Rhetoric description highlights synthesis and persuasive expression, with classical content and a focus on truth and a Christian worldview. ☐filecite☐turn18file?☐
 - The public materials explicitly discuss the use of memorization, recitation, chanting, and narrative/recitation methods in the grammar years; the rhetoric years emphasize debate, speeches, and Senior Thesis, which align with classical rhetorical training. The aristocratic approach to learning through models and imitation is evident in Curriculum and Faculty materials.
 - The site also references a contemplative/restful pace (Scholé) in lower grades, and Socratic/seminar-style inquiry in upper grades. The Charlotte Mason influence is noted in younger years (short lessons, family involvement, and restful pacing). ☐filecite☐turn3file?☐
- Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis
 - Positive keywords present: Socratic discussion; great conversation; narration/recitation; chanting/singing; copywork; imitation of models; rhetoric; senior thesis; Scholé; contemplation; wonder; liturgical calendar integration.
 - Negative keywords present: minimal presence of project-based learning as the core pedagogy; no strong signals of purely constructivist or student-led pedagogy as the dominant model; public materials emphasize teacher-guided arguments and classical texts.
- Why this rating
 - Regent’s pedagogy is deeply classical: a progression from grammar to logic to rhetoric, recitation and memorization alongside Socratic dialogue and public speaking, and a focus on great literature and virtuous discourse. The restorative/Scholé elements align with the classical schema as well.
- Supporting sources: School of Rhetoric; Academics; Portrait of a Graduate; Charlotte Mason references in Admissions materials; Six Elements lexicon alignment (Pedagogy) notes on Socratic and Scholé in the lexicon. ☐filecite☐turn10file?☐

Element 5: Faculty — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - Regent lists senior leaders (Headmaster, Dean of Instruction and Curriculum) and a substantial investment in faculty with a focus on training teachers in classical pedagogy. Public materials show faculty profiles and a long-standing faculty culture; there are dedicated pages for faculty/staff and a “Living Curriculum” through the faculty’s involvement with curriculum. The “Curriculum Map” and admissions documentation emphasize teacher selection based on vocation and alignment with the mission.
 - The admissions and philosophy pages emphasize partnership between faculty and parents and a shared mission. The Portrait of a Graduate shows the emphasis on mentors and character formation aligned with classical ideals.
- Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis

- Positive keywords present: tutors/mentors/masters/teachers as virtuous exemplars; living curriculum; portrait of a teacher; collegial culture; lifelong learners; classical teacher formation; master-teacher model; moral exemplars.
- Negative keywords present: few explicit negative signals in public materials; no evidence of “customer service” orientation or lack of teacher formation.
- Why this rating
 - Regent’s materials present a teacher-centered, virtuous, and mentor-led model consistent with classical education norms. The faculty is framed as the living curriculum and moral exemplars, which aligns with CLASSICAL.
- Supporting sources: Faculty & Staff sections; Portrait of a Graduate; Admissions philosophy; Curriculum mapping pages.

Element 6: Parents & Community — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
 - The school explicitly views parents as partners and co-educators, with formal Covenant/Parental Resolve language and a philosophy of parental involvement. The Parental Covenant and admissions materials emphasize family involvement, home-school alignment, and parents as primary spiritual influencers; Regent hosts open houses and encourages ongoing parent participation.
 - The community piece is strengthened by evidence of shared mission, traditions (Grandparents Day; Western tradition emphasis), and a capital campaign that engages the broader Regent family and alumni in campus development.
 - The school’s literature emphasizes “partnership with families,” parent formation, book studies, and seminary-like gatherings for classical education understanding.
- Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis
 - Positive keywords present: partnership with families/co-educators, parental engagement, home-school connection, family rhythm, parent covenant, open campus, parent formation, classical book clubs.
 - Negative keywords present: none that contradict classical parental partnership; no “customer” language used in the parental materials; the covenant language reinforces shared mission.
- Why this rating
 - Regent’s materials strongly emphasize parent partnership and family formation as core to the classical model, meeting the positive indicators for this category and showing minimal to no negative indicators.
- Supporting sources: Parental Covenant and covenant-adjacent admissions materials; Mission & Philosophy; Admissions FAQ; open-house references.

Aggregate Assessment and Ranking

- Overall, Regent Preparatory School of Oklahoma ranks CLASSICAL across all six categories.
- The six-category synthesis shows a consistent Classical Christian orientation (truth, virtue, Great Books/Trivium, Socratic methods, restoration of wonder, and partner-abiding community).

What Would Move the Needle

- Not applicable, since no category reaches a SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL designation. The evidence supports CLASSICAL across all six categories, with no explicit category requiring needle-moving changes to reach CLASSICAL rigor.

ABSTRACT

- Regent Preparatory School of Oklahoma demonstrates a CLASSICAL orientation across all six rubric categories: a theology-grounded and virtue-centered foundation; formation-driven purpose and telos; a curriculum built on the trivium (grammar/logic/rhetoric) and Great Books with Western-tradition study; pedagogy that integrates Socratic discussion, memorization/recitation, and imitation, with attention to contemplative SCHOLÉ rhythms; a faculty described as living curriculum and mentors; and a robust, covenantal partnership with parents and a strong community ethos. The school explicitly emphasizes truth, goodness, beauty (as aspirational ideals) and the Bible as the ultimate authority, aligning with the classical lexicon. The presence of the trivium, Great Books, and a consistent parent-school partnership underscores Regent's position within the classical education tradition.

- Primary findings by category (with key evidence anchors):
 - Religious and Metaphysical Foundations: Interdenominational Christian identity, biblical authority, mission to form virtue, and liturgical/cultural elements tied to a sacred frame. Evidence: Portrait of a Graduate; Mission & Philosophy; Biblical worldview statements.
 - School Purpose and Goal: Formation-centric telos; “truth, goodness, and beauty” language; scholé/restful cadence in lower grades and a classical telos. Evidence: Mission text; Portrait of a Graduate; Tradition elements.
 - Curriculum: Trivium progression; Great Books; Western civilization emphasis; primary texts; grammar/logic/rhetoric sequencing. Evidence: Grammar/Logic/Rhetoric curriculum maps; Great Books readings; Western-civilization framing. filecite turn10
 - Pedagogy: Socratic/seminal discussions; memorization/recitation; imitation of master texts; Scholé/restful emphasis; rhetoric training in upper grades. Evidence: School of Rhetoric page; grammar/logic/rhetoric descriptions; public references to Socratic/dialogue-based pedagogy. filecite turn18file?
 - Faculty: Living curriculum and mentorship language; emphasis on virtuous teachers and master teachers; supportive faculty culture. Evidence: Faculty profiles; Curriculum Map; Portrait of a Graduate language.
 - Parents & Community: Strong partnership language; Covenant; parent formation; open campus; parent involvement emphasized. Evidence: Parental Resolve and Covenant; Admission materials; open houses; community/campus development.

Notes on sources and keywords used

- Classical Education Lexicon alignment (positive & negative keywords lists) informed the keyword framework for each category. The lexicon includes explicit signals about truth/virtue/theology, the trivium, Great Books, Socratic/Scholé pedagogy, master-teacher models, and parent partnership. See the lexicon and related classifications.
- Core Regent materials confirming the classical Christian framing include Portrait of a Graduate, Mission & Philosophy, Academics (Grammar/Logic/Rhetoric), Curricular Maps, Rhetoric program content, Fine Arts alignment with classical aims, and Parental Covenant materials.

Abstract: Regent Preparatory School of Oklahoma fulfills CLASSICAL criteria across Religious/Metaphysical Foundations, School Purpose/Goal, Curriculum, Pedagogy, Faculty, and Parents/Community. Its public materials emphasize biblical truth, virtuous formation, Great Books and trivium-based curriculum, Socratic and rhetorical pedagogy, a living-faculty orientation, and a robust partnership with families. The aggregate evaluation places Regent squarely within the Classical tradition as defined by the accompanying classicality lexicon and the “Six Essential Elements of a Classical School (1).”

Abstract: Summary of the six categories - Element 1: CLASSICAL - Element 2: CLASSICAL - Element 3: CLASSICAL - Element 4: CLASSICAL - Element 5: CLASSICAL - Element 6: CLASSICAL

Overall: CLASSICAL

End of report.

Appendix

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE DISCLAIMER

This audit was conducted using artificial intelligence tools (including large language models and automated web-analysis scripts) to evaluate the extent to which school websites reflect or incorporate recognized principles of classical education (e.g., the trivium, emphasis on truth/beauty/goodness, integration of great books, Latin/classical languages, Socratic method, rigorous academics, moral/character formation, etc.).

Important Limitations and Caveats

1. Automated Nature: The analysis relies on AI interpretation of publicly-accessible school website content as of the date of the audit. It does not involve direct contact with schools, review of internal documents, classroom observation, or verification of curriculum implementation beyond what is stated or implied on the website.
2. Probabilistic Results: Scores and assessments are probabilistic and reflect the AI's best interpretation of available text and site structure. They are not infallible and may miss nuance, context, or recent changes not yet reflected online.
3. Subjectivity of Classical Education: "Classical Education" encompasses a range of traditions and interpretations (e.g., Dorothy Sayers' trivium model, Classical Christian Education, Great Books programs, etc.). The Humanitas Institute Audit of the Six Elements of Classical Education uses a broad, consensus-based framework derived from prominent classical education organizations and thought leaders. Reasonable people may disagree on weighting or inclusion of specific criteria.
4. No Official Endorsement or Certification: Results do not constitute official endorsement, accreditation, or certification by any classical education organization. They are provided for informational and research purposes only.
5. Potential for Error: Websites may be incomplete, poorly worded, or temporarily inaccurate. Conversely, sophisticated marketing language may create false positives. Human review by parents, educators, or classical education experts is strongly recommended before drawing final conclusions about any school.
6. Data Privacy and Ethics: Only publicly available information was analyzed. No attempts were made to access password-protected areas or collect personal data.
7. No Liability: The authors, developers, and distributors of this audit assume no liability for decisions made on the basis of these results. Users are solely responsible for their own due diligence.

By reading or using this document, you acknowledge and accept the limitations described above.