

HUMANITAS
INSTITUTE

Six Elements of Classical Education School Website Audit

School: The Ambrose School

School Website: <https://theambroseschool.org/>

January 8, 2026

Artificial Intelligence Disclaimer

This audit was performed using artificial intelligence tools to evaluate the presence and strength of classical education principles on school websites. Results are automated, probabilistic in nature, and should be considered indicative rather than definitive. See the full disclaimer in the Appendix more details.

ACCS ACCREDITED MEMBER

Any school that belongs to the Association of Classical Christian Schools (ACCS) is, by definition, recognized as a classical school because ACCS require adherence to the six essential elements defined by the Humanitas Institute. However, a school's website may not clearly reflect its conformity to one or more elements. In such cases, the school may still receive a "Somewhat Classical" rating for those elements. Schools can update their website content at any time to achieve a "Classical" rating for a given element.

Overall Classification: CLASSICAL

Executive Summary

The Ambrose School (Meridian, ID, 83646) presents a robust, biblically grounded Classical Christian education model that aligns strongly with the Six Essential Elements of a Classical School. Public-facing materials repeatedly emphasize truth, goodness, and beauty as transcendent aims; a Trivium-based curriculum (grammar, logic, rhetoric); engagement with Great Books and the "Great Conversation"; liturgical and communal practices; a clearly articulated mission of formation and virtue; a faculty described as mentors who model virtue; and an explicit partnership with parents as co-teachers. Across six categories, Ambrose demonstrates a classical orientation with clear evidence of religious/metaphysical foundations, purposeful aims toward formation and virtue, a liberal-arts curriculum anchored in the Trivium, a pedagogy combining contemplative and Socratic approaches, a faculty culture that functions as the living curriculum, and active parent/community involvement. The aggregate assessment is CLASSICAL.

Key strengths include: - Religious/metaphysical foundations: explicit Christ-centered framing, Word-of-God grounding, liturgical/community rhythms (hymn-sings, chapel, parent fellowship) and a theological world-view integrated across the curriculum. Evidence includes statements about biblical grounding, truth/goodness/beauty, and theology as foundational to learning. - Purpose and goal: formation of virtue and wisdom, classical paideia aims, and a telos oriented toward service to God and man. Public materials emphasize formation and the triad of truth, goodness, beauty (not merely information or job-readiness). - Curriculum: explicit Trivium (grammar, logic, rhetoric), Great Books/Great Conversation, and the integration of history across subjects; explicit attention to Latin and classical texts. Evidence includes "grammar/logic/retror-" framing and Great Books references. - Pedagogy: a blend of contemplative/restful learning (scholé) with Socratic discussion and rhetoric in upper grades; lower grades emphasize singing/recitation/memory; upper grades emphasize seminars and thesis-style work. - Faculty: descriptions of teachers as living curriculum and mentors; portrait of teachers as professional exemplars; collaboration with families; faculty biographies emphasize virtue and faith. - Parents & Community: explicit partnership with families; Bridge Campus materials emphasize parents as first teachers and parental training; Ambrose Parents groups and open campus culture are foregrounded.

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

- Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL Evidence: biblically-based, Word-of-God grounding; truth/goodness/beauty; liturgical/community rhythm (hymn-sings, chapel); theology woven through curriculum. Positive keywords dominate; negative signals (secular relativism) appear absent. Why: strong transcendental foundations plus liturgical practices.
- Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL Evidence: formation of virtue and wisdom; telos toward truth/goodness/beauty; emphasis on formation over mere information; Great Books/Great Conversation. Positive keywords present; negative signals (career-readiness emphasis) largely absent. Why: clear paideia orientation and formation-focused aims.

- Element 3: School Curriculum — CLASSICAL Evidence: Trivium explicitly taught; Great Books/Great Conversation; classical languages (Latin); integration of history across curriculum; emphasis on wonder. Positive keywords evident; no substantive negative signals observed in public materials. Why: curriculum mirrors classical liberal-arts canon.
- Element 4: School Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — CLASSICAL Evidence: lower grades emphasize contemplative, memory-based learning (chanting, singing); upper grades engage Socratic discussion, seminars, thesis-style work; there is explicit emphasis on rhetoric and public speaking. Positive keywords present; negative project-based-only signals not evident. Why: pedagogy aligns with classical methods (scholé + Socratic/rhetoric).
- Element 5: School Faculty — CLASSICAL Evidence: faculty described as living curriculum and mentors; portrait of teachers; culture of collegiality; teachers' biographies emphasize virtue, faith, and pedagogy grounded in classical methods. Why: strong depiction of faculty as exemplars and collaborators in formation.
- Element 6: Parents & Community — CLASSICAL Evidence: explicit partnership with families; parent training; Ambrose Bridge Campus emphasises family-teacher co-labor; Ambrose Parents pages. Why: sustained emphasis on parental partnership and ongoing formation for families.

Aggregate Ranking: CLASSICAL

What would move the needle (only for SOMEWHAT CLASSICAL schools per instructions) - Not applicable here since the aggregate classification is CLASSICAL. No major needle-moving changes are required.

Proceeding with the detailed category analyses and keyword analysis per the rubric below.

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
- Public materials frame Ambrose as Biblically-based and theologically integrated; statements emphasize truth, goodness, and beauty anchored in Christian faith; Word of God is foundational to moral discernment. A head-of-schools statement explicitly grounds education in the Word of God and in Jesus as the source of Truth, Goodness, and Beauty.
- Liturgical/communal practices are described (hymn-sings, chapel, liturgical rhythms) as part of the education process.
- Curriculum and community materials embed theology and worship into daily life and learning, including statements of faith and Christian worldview framing.
- Positive/Negative keyword analysis
- Positive keywords present: truth, goodness, beauty; virtue; theology; worship; liturgy; chapel; hymnody; sacred tradition; Christian worldview; Word of God; prayer; doxology; sacred music; reverence; Logos; imago Dei. The site consistently uses terms aligned with transcendental moral realism and sacred order.
- Negative keywords present: few to none; explicit relativism or secular humanism terms are not evident in public-facing Ambrose materials.
- Why this rating
- The material emphasizes transcendental ideals and a theologically grounded approach to education, with liturgical and communal practices that embed sacred life into schooling. This aligns strongly with the Six Elements' religious/metaphysical foundations.

Citations: Word-of-God, Truth/Goodness/Beauty quotes and theology framing appear in Ambrose materials; liturgical practices are described in house/parent materials.

Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
- Mission emphasizes nurturing truth, goodness, and beauty while guiding students to live purposefully in service of God and man; formation is foregrounded over mere information. The public materials articulate a telos to form virtuous, wise, well-educated graduates.
- The Great Books / Great Conversation and the paideia-oriented aims indicate formation of character and intellectual virtues. The school describes education as forming the person rather than merely delivering content.
- Positive/Negative keyword analysis
- Positive keywords present: formation, virtue, wisdom, liberal education/paideia, telos, pursuit of truth/-goodness/beauty, Great Books/Great Conversation, education for leisure/rest in scholé (where referenced). The presence of “formation” and “great conversation/Great Books” signals a classical aim beyond workforce preparation.
- Negative keywords present: terms signaling “career readiness” or “21st century skills” are not prominent in Ambrose’s public materials.
- Why this rating
- The school’s stated aims reflect formation of character and wisdom consistent with classical education; the Great Books/Great Conversation emphasis aligns with the classical telos.

Citations: Mission and formation language; Great Books/Great Conversation references; the emphasis on formation over vocational training.

Element 3: School Curriculum — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
- Trivium framing: grammar (K-6), logic (7-8), rhetoric (9-12) are explicitly discussed as learning stages.
- Great Books/Great Conversation: multiple references to Great Books, primary texts, and integrated humanities; explicit planning around canonical texts and primary sources is evident.
- Liberal-arts emphasis: grammar/logic/rhetoric, classical languages (Latin), history and literature rotation; integration of disciplines and wonder are highlighted.
- Historical engagement and integration: curriculum rotates through world history and classical texts; emphasis on reading great literature and primary sources.
- Positive/Negative keyword analysis
- Positive keywords present: Seven Liberal Arts (grammar, logic, rhetoric; Quadrivium), Great Books, primary sources, Latin, history/Western civilization, interdisciplinary/harmony of subjects, wonder, sacred tradition, Socratic texts (in pedagogy; cross-subject integration).
- Negative keywords present: minimal presence of social studies framing; no explicit replacement of history with social studies; no heavy emphasis on project-based learning as a sole driver.
- Why this rating
- The curriculum is squarely anchored in liberal-arts canon and Trivium framework, with Great Books and Latin, and explicit interdisciplinary integration, consistent with CLASSICAL criteria.

Citations: Trivium and pedagogy references; Great Books references; Latin and history rotations.

Element 4: Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
- Lower grades emphasize contemplative/restful modes (scholé-like aspects: singing, memory work, repetition). Upper grades emphasize Socratic discussion, seminars, and rhetorically oriented work (thesis projects, orations). The public materials note the progression from grammar to logic to rhetoric in classroom practice.
- Socratic teaching/instruction: public-facing materials describe Socratic discussion in the Logic and Rhetoric stages; teacher-student dialogues and debate practices are highlighted.
- Memory/chanting: lower grades use songs, chants, and rhymes to memorize content, aligning with scholé and memory-focused pedagogy.
- Positive/Negative keyword analysis
- Positive keywords present: scholé, contemplative learning, singing/chanting/memory, Socratic discussion, seminars, rhetoric, thesis projects, public speaking.
- Negative keywords present: none of the standard “project-based only” or “experiential-learning-only” signals dominate; Ambrose’s model blends contemplative/restful with Socratic/seminar activities.
- Why this rating
- The pedagogy embodies the classical balance of contemplative/memory-based learning in early years and Socratic/seminar-based, rhetoric-forward pedagogy in later years; this aligns with CLASSICAL expectations.

Citations: Lower- vs upper-school pedagogical approaches; Socratic discussions; memory/chanting; thesis/rhetoric emphasis.

Element 5: School Faculty — CLASSICAL

- Evidence
- Public materials describe faculty as mentors and living examples of virtue; staff pages highlight teachers as the core of the school’s mission; biographies emphasize faith commitments and mastery of classical pedagogy. The public materials depict faculty as the “living curriculum” and as collaborative partners with families.
- Mission statements highlight humility, virtue, and the role of teachers in enculturation and formation; teachers are framed as masters or mentors and as living exemplars of classical methods.
- Positive/Negative keyword analysis
- Positive keywords present: living curriculum; mentors; portrait/embodiment of virtue; teacher as model of virtue; faculty collaboration with families; classical pedagogy formation.
- Negative keywords present: none evident in public-facing materials (i.e., no “certification-driven” or purely technocratic framing appears).
- Why this rating
- The faculty portrayal emphasizes mentorship, virtue modeling, and the living curriculum, consistent with classical expectations.

Citations: Faculty as living curriculum; biographies; statements about mentorship and virtue.

Element 6: Parents & Community — CLASSICAL

- Evidence

- Explicit partnership with parents; Bridge Campus materials emphasize that parents are the child's first and best teachers and that Ambrose provides curricularly aligned content while training parents. The school frames itself as a community of faith and learning with active parent engagement and book-group training.
- Ambrose Parents pages and parent-life resources foreground ongoing parent formation, seminars, and open-campus opportunities; there are structured home-day learning plans and home-education support, indicating deep parent participation.
- Positive/Negative keyword analysis
- Positive keywords present: partnership with families; parent formation; parental engagement; home-/school collaboration; living tradition in the family; co-teaching roles; open campus/visitation.
- Negative keywords present: minimal; no "parents as customers only" signals; content emphasizes partnership and formation.
- Why this rating
- The school demonstrates sustained, explicit parent engagement, training, and co-teaching models, meeting classical-community expectations.

Citations: Bridge Campus materials stating parental partnership; parent education materials; Ambrose Parent Life references.

What Would Move the Needle

- Given the CLASSICAL classifications across all six categories, there are no major needle-moving changes required. If desired, minor enhancements could include:
 - Deepening cross-campus integration of Great Books discussions to reach all grade levels beyond the existing Great Books club format (to further emphasize the Great Conversation across the curriculum). Evidence shows active Great Books programming and "Great Books Club."
 - Expanding explicit articulation of the Quadrivium within the curriculum to further reinforce Seven Liberal Arts beyond grammar/logic/rhetoric (Quadrivium elements are alluded to within the lexicon; formalized public-facing curriculum mapping could be enhanced).
 - These would be procedural refinements rather than substantive changes, preserving the core CLASSICAL identity.
-

Appendix

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE DISCLAIMER

This audit was conducted using artificial intelligence tools (including large language models and automated web-analysis scripts) to evaluate the extent to which school websites reflect or incorporate recognized principles of classical education (e.g., the trivium, emphasis on truth/beauty/goodness, integration of great books, Latin/classical languages, Socratic method, rigorous academics, moral/character formation, etc.).

Important Limitations and Caveats

1. Automated Nature: The analysis relies on AI interpretation of publicly-accessible school website content as of the date of the audit. It does not involve direct contact with schools, review of internal documents, classroom observation, or verification of curriculum implementation beyond what is stated or implied on the website.
2. Probabilistic Results: Scores and assessments are probabilistic and reflect the AI's best interpretation of available text and site structure. They are not infallible and may miss nuance, context, or recent changes not yet reflected online.
3. Subjectivity of Classical Education: "Classical Education" encompasses a range of traditions and interpretations (e.g., Dorothy Sayers' trivium model, Classical Christian Education, Great Books programs, etc.). The Humanitas Institute Audit of the Six Elements of Classical Education uses a broad, consensus-based framework derived from prominent classical education organizations and thought leaders. Reasonable people may disagree on weighting or inclusion of specific criteria.
4. No Official Endorsement or Certification: Results do not constitute official endorsement, accreditation, or certification by any classical education organization. They are provided for informational and research purposes only.
5. Potential for Error: Websites may be incomplete, poorly worded, or temporarily inaccurate. Conversely, sophisticated marketing language may create false positives. Human review by parents, educators, or classical education experts is strongly recommended before drawing final conclusions about any school.
6. Data Privacy and Ethics: Only publicly available information was analyzed. No attempts were made to access password-protected areas or collect personal data.
7. No Liability: The authors, developers, and distributors of this audit assume no liability for decisions made on the basis of these results. Users are solely responsible for their own due diligence.

By reading or using this document, you acknowledge and accept the limitations described above.