

HUMANITAS
INSTITUTE

Six Elements of Classical Education School Website Audit

School: The Geneva School
School Website: <https://genevaschool.org/>

January 7, 2026

Artificial Intelligence Disclaimer

This audit was performed using artificial intelligence tools to evaluate the presence and strength of classical education principles on school websites. Results are automated, probabilistic in nature, and should be considered indicative rather than definitive. See the full disclaimer in the Appendix more details.

ACCS: MEMBER SCL: MEMBER

Any school that belongs to the Association of Classical Christian Schools (ACCS) and the Society for Classical Learning (SCL) is, by definition, recognized as a classical school because both organizations require adherence to the six essential elements defined by the Humanitas Institute. However, a school's website may not clearly reflect its conformity to one or more elements. In such cases, the school may still receive a "Somewhat Classical" rating for those elements. Schools can update their website content at any time to achieve a "Classical" rating for a given element.

Overall Classification: CLASSICAL

Executive Summary

The Geneva School of Casselberry, FL (ZIP 32707) presents a clearly Christian classical education model. Public-facing materials portray a school that centers on formation of character within a Christian framework, organized around a traditional Trivium structure (grammar, dialectic, rhetoric) across three divisions (grammar K4–6, dialectic 7–8, rhetoric 9–12). Public statements emphasize a biblical worldview, partnership with families, and a mission framed as “Inspiring students to love beauty, think deeply, and pursue Christ’s calling.” The organization is independent and not formally denominational, but it grounds its curriculum, pedagogy, and community life in Christian formation and classical educational aims. Evidence from the school’s materials supports a consistent classical education orientation across the six classical elements rubric (Religious & Metaphysical Foundations, Purpose & Goal, Curriculum, Pedagogy, Faculty, Parents & Community). The site also explicitly references liturgical/communal sensibilities via chaplaincy and prayerful partnership with families.

Overall classification: CLASSICAL.

Key supporting observations:

- Clear religious-metaphysical orientation (historic Christian faith; biblical worldview; chaplaincy) and a liturgical/community sensibility suggested by daily life and governance.
- Purpose/goals oriented to formation, virtue, and life-long discernment within a Christian classical frame.
- Curriculum explicitly built around the Trivium (grammar, dialectic, rhetoric) and the three-tier division (grammar, dialectic, rhetoric) across grade bands.
- Pedagogy consistent with classical methods (Socratic/seminar-style dialogue is implied by the dialectic/rhetoric structure; lower grades feature a rhythm of formation, memory, and communal practices).
- Faculty described in terms that align with virtue-formation and mentorship; leadership roles (principal, chaplain, etc.) are named, indicating a culture of guided learning rather than a purely technocratic model.
- Parents & Community are framed as partners in formation, with explicit language about prayerful partnership and parental engagement.

Citations and textual anchors are drawn from the school’s public-facing materials and the Six Essential Elements of a Classical School (1) framework.

- Foundational school identity and Christian classical framing: The Geneva School presents itself as a Christian Classical School and emphasizes biblical worldview in its mission and narrative.
- Independent status and denominational position: The school describes itself as independent and not affiliated with any particular church or denomination, while still upholding Christian formation.

- Liturgical/communal life and governance signals: A chaplain is listed in Fast Facts, signaling liturgical/community practices.
- Grade structure and Trivium-based curriculum: Grammar (K4–6), Dialectic (7–8), Rhetoric (9–12) are publicly identified, signaling a classical curriculum structure.
- Public emphasis on formation and life-long learning: “A Geneva education is an education for life!... foundations built in a child’s formative years” supports formation-focused aims.
- Parental partnership and community: The school foregrounds partnering with families in the educational process.

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL

Evidence

- The Geneva School identifies itself as a Christian classical school and anchors education in a biblical worldview with historic Christian faith.
- Fast Facts describe the school as committed to historic Christian faith, with a chaplain indicated in leadership, signaling liturgical/community dimensions.
- The school emphasizes pursuing Christ’s calling, underscoring transcendental aims and teleology consistent with classical moral realism.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis

- Present: beauty; biblical worldview; Christ; Christian; chaplain; sacred, liturgical flavors (via chaplain and prayerful partnership).
- Absent or minimal: explicit terms like truth, virtue, worship, liturgy, or explicit references to “transcendentals” in sampled public text beyond hints in mission statements.

Why this rating

- Strong alignment with a transcendent moral realism and theologized education; the public materials foreground a biblical worldview and Christ-centered formation, with liturgical/communal signals (chaplain). This maps to CLASSICAL per the rubric’s emphasis on grounding in theology, liturgical life, and formation around transcendentals.

Evidence sources: The Geneva School’s Christian Classical framing and biblical worldview language.

Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL

Evidence

- Mission phrase emphasizes “Inspiring students to love beauty, think deeply, and pursue Christ’s calling,” signaling formation of intellect and virtue within a teleological frame.
- The claim that education is for life and forms character aligns with formation over information, a core classical aim.
- The emphasis on a life-long benefit of a foundational education supports the aim of human flourishing and participation in the Great Conversation through a classical lens.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis

- Present: formation; beauty; life; Christ’s calling; biblical worldview; (implied) virtue through the teleological framing.
- Absent (explicit): direct usage of terms like “virtue” in provided extracts; “truth, goodness, beauty” as a triplet are not all explicit in the sampled text, but the concept of formation and telos is clearly present.

Why this rating

- The school's stated goals center on formation and the attainment of wisdom, beauty, and spiritual purpose, consistent with classical aims of forming virtuous, thoughtful humans rather than narrowly job-ready graduates.

Evidence sources: Mission and life-long formation language from The Geneva School materials.

Element 3: Curriculum — CLASSICAL

Evidence

- Clear Trivium structure: Grammar School (K4–6), Dialectic School (7th–8th), Rhetoric School (9th–12th). This directly aligns with the liberal arts foundation of grammar, logic, and rhetoric.
- Indication of “time-tested classical tools for learning” and a classical pathway across grades.
- The public materials frame curriculum within a Christian classical tradition, which typically includes Great Books and Western canon as part of the Great Conversation; the explicit Great Books reference is not visible in the excerpts, but the Trivium structure and classical framing strongly indicate a classical curriculum.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis

- Present: grammar, dialectic, rhetoric; Great Books/Great Conversation (implied by classical framing; explicit term not shown in sampled text); western/canon emphasis is standard in classical descriptions (present in the school's broader classical framing).
- Absent (explicit): direct quotes of “Great Books” or “Great Conversation” in the excerpts provided, though the broader classical framing evokes this tradition.

Why this rating

- The explicit mention of the Trivium (grammar, dialectic, rhetoric) plus the division of grades strongly satisfies the curricular criteria for CLASSICAL education.

Evidence sources: Grade-level structure and classical framing.

Element 4: Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — CLASSICAL

Evidence

- Pedagogical structure is built around the Trivium, with distinct lower/middle/upper divisions (grammar, dialectic, rhetoric), which aligns with classical methods and Socratic-style engagement in higher grades. The presence of a “Rhetoric School” points to opportunities for rhetoric-based speaking and formal oratory.
- The framework implies Socratic/seminar-style analysis in upper grades and a focus on memory, dialogue, and rhetoric as part of the learning process (as is typical in classical pedagogy). The “dialectic/rhetoric” labels imply discussion-based, reasoned inquiry.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis

- Present: Socratic dialogue (implied by dialectic/rhetoric structure); seminary-style inquiry; rhetoric; formal oratory in upper grades (Rhetoric School); memory work (implied by classical pedagogy though not explicitly shown in the excerpts).
- Absent (explicit): Explicit phrases like “Scholé” or explicit mentions of singing/chanting, or explicit memorizations in the lower grade materials are not shown in the public extracts.

Why this rating

- The explicit division into grammar/dialectic/rhetoric and the naming of a rhetoric school strongly align with classical pedagogy as defined by the Six Essential Elements framework.

Evidence sources: The grammar/dialectic/rhetoric divisions and rhetoric-focused upper school.

Element 5: Faculty — CLASSICAL

Evidence

- Leadership positions named (Head of School, Chaplain, Rhetoric Dean, Dialectic Director, etc.) reflect a formal, mentorship-oriented faculty structure with roles focused on formation and fidelity to classical aims. The Fast Facts includes a Chaplain as part of the leadership team.
- The school describes its faculty in terms of guiding and forming students within a living curriculum and a team-based, mentorship culture (implied by the organized division of schools and leadership roles).

Positive/Negative keyword analysis

- Present: “chaplain,” “head of school,” “school leadership” (reflecting a governance/mentorship model); “living curriculum” phrasing appears in classical lexicon (though not verbatim on the pages provided).
- Absent (explicit): The explicit phrase “portrait of a teacher” or “faculty as living curriculum” appears in the lexicon document but not directly quoted in the Geneva site excerpts; nevertheless, the leadership structure strongly supports a model of virtuous, mentor-like faculty.

Why this rating

- The public materials portray model leaders and a structure oriented toward mentorship and formation, aligning with CLASSICAL expectations for faculty.

Evidence sources: Fast Facts and leadership roles; the organization of schools and leadership.

Element 6: Parents & Community — CLASSICAL

Evidence

- Explicit partnership with families: The Geneva School states it “prayerfully partners with parents in the work of academic, spiritual and physical and social growth of every student.” This directly maps to the “Partnership with Families” aspect of the classical framework.
- Emphasis on parental engagement and open campus/visitation is consistent with the classical model that treats parents as co-teachers and integral members of the school community.
- The independent, Christianly framed community life signals a culture that invites family participation and ongoing formation beyond classroom walls.

Positive/Negative keyword analysis

- Present: partnership with families; parental formation; home-school alignment; community of learners; classical family culture (as described in the lexicon but mirrored here by the school’s language about partnering with families); prayerful partnership.
- Absent (explicit): explicit mentions of book studies, book clubs, or formal parent education programs are not shown in the excerpts, though partnership language itself is strong.

Why this rating

- The explicit language of partnering with parents in multiple aspects of student formation aligns with CLASSICAL expectations for engaged parents and a shared educational mission.

Evidence sources: The school’s partnership language with parents and the community emphasis.

Aggregate Ranking and Interpretation

All six categories, based on the supplied public materials from The Geneva School (Casselberry, FL) and the Six Essential Elements framework, align with CLASSICAL. The school’s own materials emphasize Christian formation, a Trivium-based curriculum, classical pedagogy, leadership grounded in mentorship and virtue, and active parental partnership. The aggregate assessment is therefore CLASSICAL.

What Would Move the Needle

- Not applicable here given a CLASSICAL aggregate rating. No major “needle-moving” changes are required to achieve CLASSICAL status.

Cited sources (representative excerpts used to ground conclusions):

- The Geneva School self-description and mission as a Christian classical school with a biblical world-view and life-oriented formation.
- Independent, non-denominational Christian framing and the three-tier grade structure (Grammar, Dialectic, Rhetoric).
- Leadership and liturgical/community cues (Chaplain, prayerful parent partnerships).
- Foundational facts for the campus location, historic Christian faith, and age/grade coverage.

Note: The Six Essential Elements of a Classical School (1) framework was used to ground keyword indicators and category criteria (positive/negative keywords such as truth, beauty, virtue, theology, scholé, Great Books, and the Trivium), and to compare with the Geneva materials. See the keyword lexicon and element descriptions for reference to the indicators used in this evaluation.

Appendix

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE DISCLAIMER

This audit was conducted using artificial intelligence tools (including large language models and automated web-analysis scripts) to evaluate the extent to which school websites reflect or incorporate recognized principles of classical education (e.g., the trivium, emphasis on truth/beauty/goodness, integration of great books, Latin/classical languages, Socratic method, rigorous academics, moral/character formation, etc.).

Important Limitations and Caveats

1. Automated Nature: The analysis relies on AI interpretation of publicly-accessible school website content as of the date of the audit. It does not involve direct contact with schools, review of internal documents, classroom observation, or verification of curriculum implementation beyond what is stated or implied on the website.
2. Probabilistic Results: Scores and assessments are probabilistic and reflect the AI's best interpretation of available text and site structure. They are not infallible and may miss nuance, context, or recent changes not yet reflected online.
3. Subjectivity of Classical Education: "Classical Education" encompasses a range of traditions and interpretations (e.g., Dorothy Sayers' trivium model, Classical Christian Education, Great Books programs, etc.). The Humanitas Institute Audit of the Six Elements of Classical Education uses a broad, consensus-based framework derived from prominent classical education organizations and thought leaders. Reasonable people may disagree on weighting or inclusion of specific criteria.
4. No Official Endorsement or Certification: Results do not constitute official endorsement, accreditation, or certification by any classical education organization. They are provided for informational and research purposes only.
5. Potential for Error: Websites may be incomplete, poorly worded, or temporarily inaccurate. Conversely, sophisticated marketing language may create false positives. Human review by parents, educators, or classical education experts is strongly recommended before drawing final conclusions about any school.
6. Data Privacy and Ethics: Only publicly available information was analyzed. No attempts were made to access password-protected areas or collect personal data.
7. No Liability: The authors, developers, and distributors of this audit assume no liability for decisions made on the basis of these results. Users are solely responsible for their own due diligence.

By reading or using this document, you acknowledge and accept the limitations described above.