Disclaimer

This audit was performed using artificial intelligence tools to evaluate the presence and strength of classical education principles on school websites. Results are automated, probabilistic in nature, and should be considered indicative rather than definitive. See the full disclaimer in the Appendix for more details.

ACCS Member School

Any school that belongs to the Association of Classical Christian Schools ACCS or the Society for Classical Learning SCL is, by definition, recognized as a classical school because both organizations require adherence to the six essential elements defined by the Humanitas Institute. However, a school's website may not clearly reflect its conformity to one or more elements. In such cases, the school may still receive a "Somewhat Classical" rating for those elements. Schools can update their website content at any time to achieve a "Classical" rating for a given element.

Executive Summary

Regina Luminis Academy (Berwyn, PA 19312) presents a strong, clearly classical, Catholic-influenced educational profile. Public-facing materials consistently emphasize a Catholic classical framework built around the Great Books, the Trivium and Quadrivium, liturgical practices, and a formation-based mission oriented toward virtue, wisdom, and service. The school characterizes its curriculum as "Catholic Classical Education" with explicit references to weekly Mass, adoration, Marian devotion, and a Magisterial integration of Catholic teaching throughout the program. Multiple sources describe a unified, integrated curriculum anchored in Western Catholic tradition, with explicit attention to formation of character (virtue) and the experience of wonder. The public materials also highlight pedagogical approaches aligned with classical practice (Socratic dialogue, memorization/recitation, and rhetoric) and a family-centered community that partners with parents. Taken together, these indicators align Regina Luminis Academy with CLASSICAL, while all six categories show coherent orientation to the classical model rather than a partial or secularized version.

Key confirmatory signals include: a Catholic classical mission and identity (Magisterium, Mass, Adoration, rosary, Catholic truth integrated throughout curriculum) , explicit reference to the Trivium and Quadrivium and Great Books as foundational elements of the curriculum , a learning culture that includes Socratic discussion and upper-school rhetoric alongside lower-school memory/chanting practices, and strong family/parish engagement with steps toward parental formation and open campus experiences fileciteturn0file7turn0file10turn0file17. The knowledge-base and the school's site content together support a CLASSICAL rating across the rubric's six domains.

Executive Summary — Element-by-Element Snapshot

Element 1: Religious and Metaphysical Foundations — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Weekly Mass and Adoration on campus, with ongoing Catholic devotional practices, including Living Rosary and daily devotionals (evidence of liturgical and communal practice) . - Curriculum framing emphasizes theological virtues, moral virtues, and intellectual virtues, embedded in a Catholic worldview and integrated with the Magisterium . - Explicit Catholic identity in mission statements and in the integration of Catholic truth as a frame for cross-disciplinary interpretation and meaning (vertical/horizontal integration) . - Oath of Fidelity and commitment to teach according to Church Magisterium; emphasis on liturgical life and sacred devotion on campus (Admissions/Open House materials) .

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive indicators present: Catholic, Magisterium, theology, liturgy, Mass, Adoration, rosary, virtue (theological, moral, intellectual), fidelity, sacred, worship. - Negative indicators: none evident in public-facing materials (no explicit relativism/neutral ethics signals observed in the texts analyzed here).

Why this rating - The materials consistently ground education in a transcendent Catholic framework, with explicit liturgical practices and a curriculum framed by Catholic truth and virtue formation. The presence of liturgical life, devotional practices, and explicit Magisterial integration strongly supports a Classical orientation in this domain.

Cited elements: Catholic identity, liturgical practice, virtue formation, Magisterium integration. ☐file-cite☐turn0file10☐turn0file1☐turn0file11☐

Element 2: School Purpose and Goal — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The school's purpose centers on formation: formation of virtue and wisdom, humane flourishing, and the pursuit of truth, goodness, and beauty, rather than mere job-preparation or information transfer. Foundational language emphasizes forming the complete person in a liberal-arts, Catholic frame . - Formal articulation of partnership with families to educate children in the Catholic classical tradition and to form responsible Catholic citizens and leaders suggests a telos anchored in virtue and human excellence rather than vocational training alone . - The open, integrated, Great-Books-centered approach is presented as the vehicle for forming character and intellect in service of higher truths, not merely information delivery or workforce-readiness .

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive indicators present: formation, virtue, human flourishing, wisdom, liberal education/paideia, great conversation, telos, contemplation, classical heritage, moral imagination, unity of truth/goodness/beauty. - Negative indicators observed in texts: essentially none related to workforce/preparation language; the site emphasizes formation over career-readiness signals.

Why this rating - The school consistently emphasizes formation of character and intellect within a liberal-arts, truth-centered framework and positions itself against purely utilitarian, job-focused education. This aligns with CLASSICAL principles for School Purpose and Goal.

Cited elements: formation/virtue, liberal education, telos, great conversation, mission framing. ☐file-cite☐turn0file1☐turn0file0☐turn0file11☐

Element 3: School Curriculum — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Grounded in the Trivium and Quadrivium (grammar, logic, rhetoric; arithmetic, geometry, music, astronomy) as the liberal-arts foundation, with explicit reference to Great Books and Western-Civilization-centered study . - Integrated horizontal and vertical curriculum: history studied throughout with Incarnation as central, and Catholic truth as the supreme integrating principle guiding interpretation across subjects; emphasis on Western civilization and Christian tradition as the frame of study . - Explicit reference to Great Books, the Great Conversation, primary sources, and engagement with canonical texts; emphasis on “education in the tradition of the Roman Catholic Church” and the living tradition of Western civilization . - The public materials describe a unified curriculum that weaves history, literature, philosophy, and the sciences, anchored by Catholic truth and liturgical rhythm, and culminating in a senior thesis in the high school program (a classic rhetorical/argumentation milestone) .

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive indicators present: Seven Liberal Arts (Trivium/Quadrivium), Great Books, history/western civilization, integration (horizontal/vertical), primary sources, classical languages, rhetoric, memory work (recitation/chanting), formational text, sacred tradition. - Negative indicators: None of the negative signals (e.g., replacement by “social studies” framing, STEM-first, or project-based dominance) are evident in the site content.

Why this rating - The curriculum is explicitly liberal-arts-centered with Trivium/Quadrivium, Great Books, historical/cultural transmission, and a priority on formation through enduring texts and traditions, which matches CLASSICAL criteria quite closely.

Cited elements: Trivium/Quadrivium, Great Books, history integrated with Incarnation, Catholic truth as organizing principle. ☐filecite☐turn0file8☐turn0file11☐turn0file1☐

Element 4: School Pedagogy or Teaching Methods — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Lower- and middle-school practices emphasize contemplative, memory-based routines (singing/chanting, recitation, memory work) to teach foundational knowledge; upper grades emphasize Socratic discussion, seminars, debates, and rhetorical training; culminating with public senior theses reflects classical pedagogy's emphasis on dialog, argument, and eloquence . - Public materials describe the Socratic Method as a defining characteristic for the high school, with students reading classic texts and engaging in pointed questioning to relate timeless truths to contemporary issues; the pedagogy explicitly links to memory work, recitation, and rhetoric across grade levels . - The Trivium pedagogy and emphasis on a sequential development in grammar, logic, and rhetoric are anchored in the school's stated curriculum and practice; senior-year rhetorical capstone (senior thesis) situates students within classical public-speaking traditions . - Evidence of restful, contemplative learning in some phases (Scholé philosophy) appears in the lexicon and is referenced within the school's pedagogy in the classical tradition; the site content shows a balance between memorization, chanting, and rigorous discussion .

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive indicators present: Socratic method/seminar, dialectic, recitation, chanting, memory work, liturgical calendar integration, rhetoric, oratory, debates, capstone orations, scholé, contemplation, wonder. - Negative indicators observed in the texts: no sustained emphasis on purely experiential, project-based, or student-directed constructs that would signal a shift away from classic forms (the materials emphasize traditional forms of intellectual discourse and memorization, not exclusively constructivist/project-based modes).

Why this rating - The pedagogical approach aligns with classical methods (Socratic dialogue, memorization, recitation, rhetoric, scholarly debate) and supports a graduated path from memory-based foundations to advanced rhetorical expression. This alignment supports a CLASSICAL designation in Pedagogy.

Cited elements: Socratic method, memorization/recitation/chanting, Scholé, upper-school seminars, rhetoric, senior thesis. ☐filecite☐turn0file7☐turn0file8☐

Element 5: School Faculty — CLASSICAL

Evidence - Public materials describe faculty as aligned with the school's Catholic classical mission; the curriculum is described as "Catholic Classical Education" with the Magisterium shaping instruction, implying faculty leadership in living out the tradition (faculty integration with Magisterium throughout curriculum) . - The presence of a "living curriculum" concept is implied through the articulation of faith-integrated pedagogy and the teacher's role in conveying enduring truths; public-facing statements emphasize virtue, character formation, and fidelity to ecclesial teaching as hallmarks of the instructional leadership. In particular, the Magisterial integration in daily instruction indicates faculty acting as moral exemplars and guides within a classical framework .

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive indicators present: model teachers and mentors, living curriculum (as a doctrine implied by Magisterium integration), faculty as guides in virtue and classical formation, portrait of teacher/student ideals. - Negative indicators observed: none evident in the accessible public materials.

Why this rating - The materials frame faculty as the core vehicle for transmitting Catholic classical education, with explicit emphasis on alignment with Magisterium and virtuous, well-formed teaching. This supports a CLASSICAL assessment for Faculty.

Cited elements: Catholic faculty integrates Magisterium; teacher-led formation; living curriculum concepts implied by the religious/academic framing.

Element 6: School Parents & Community — CLASSICAL

Evidence - The school presents itself as assisting parents in the education and formation of children, with explicit partnership language; the mission emphasizes formation in partnership with families, aiming to form Catholic citizens and leaders in collaboration with parents . - Open events (Open House, admissions pages) invite families to participate, visit, and engage in the school community; materials also reference parent formation initiatives (e.g., discussions around the classical ethos and methods) and community events linked to liturgical life . - The public-facing materials emphasize Western tradition, Great Books, and classical culture as part of a community and parish-centered life, including daily prayer, Mass, and shared liturgical practices that involve families and the broader Catholic community .

Positive/Negative Keyword Analysis - Positive indicators present: partnership with families, parent formation, open-campus/visits for families, family participation, classical home-school rhythms, shared mission. - Negative indicators: none observed in the accessible materials; there is no language signaling consumerism or minimal parental involvement.

Why this rating - The school explicitly situates parents as partners and co-educators, with active opportunities for family engagement in the classical education process, supported by a visibly hospitable community culture.

Cited elements: Partnership with families; parent formation; open access/visits; family engagement in classical education. ☐filecite☐turn0file1☐turn0file17☐

Overall Assessment and Aggregate Ranking

Aggregate Ranking: CLASSICAL

Rationale - Across all six categories, Regina Luminis Academy demonstrates consistent alignment with classical education principles: a Catholic, virtue-centered foundation; a purpose oriented toward formation, not merely information; a curriculum centered on the Trivium/Quadrivium, Great Books, and a unified Catholic perspective; pedagogy rooted in Socratic inquiry, memory-based learning, and rhetorical practice; faculty aligned with Magisterial teaching and virtuous mentorship; and a robust partnership with parents and community life. The evidence in the crawl content includes explicit statements about liturgy, virtue formation, Great Books, and classical pedagogy, complemented by the school's own public materials that highlight a shared mission with families, a parish-based community, and a Catholic identity. The presence of Mass/Adoration, Living Rosary, Oath of Fidelity, and the Great Books/Trivium/Quadrivium framework are particularly strong indicators of classical orientation. No substantial negative signals were found in the accessible materials, and the lexicon-based rubric supports a predominantly positive classical alignment across all six domains.

Cited elements across domains: Catholic identity and Magisterium integration; Great Books and Western Civilization framing; Trivium/Quadrivium; Socratic method, memory/recitation, and rhetoric; living curriculum/faculty alignment; partnership with families and community life. ☐filecite☐turn0file1☐turn0file11☐turn0file8☐turn0file7☐turn0file12☐

What Would Move the Needle

- Not applicable (SCORE = CLASSICAL). No needle-moving changes are required to reach full CLASSICAL status as an aggregate. If desired, the school could further strengthen explicit articulation of each category's positive/negative keyword signals in public materials to ensure ongoing alignment, but the current materials already meet the criteria robustly.

ABSTRACT

Regina Luminis Academy presents a robust CLASSICAL profile, centered on Catholic, virtuous formation through a Great-Books-infused curriculum, the Trivium/Quadrivium, and rigorous Socratic pedagogy. The school's public materials consistently describe liturgical life (Mass, Adoration, Living Rosary), a curriculum vertically integrated with Catholic truth, and a collaborative partnership with families as co-educators. The six categories—Religious and Metaphysical Foundations, School Purpose and Goal, Curriculum, Pedagogy, Faculty, Parents & Community—are all aligned with classical indicators found in the Six Essential Elements framework (e.g., truth, virtue, Great Books, Trivium/Quadrivium, Socratic dialogue, memory work, and family partnership). The overall assessment is CLASSICAL, with the strongest signals in Religious and Metaphysical Foundations, Curriculum, Pedagogy, and Parents & Community, driven by explicit Catholic identity, Great Books, and rigorous classical pedagogy, supported by visible family engagement and liturgical life.

Key thematic synthesis: - Religious and Metaphysical Foundations: liturgical life, Catholic theology, virtue formation, and Magisterial alignment. - Purpose and Goal: formation-centered aims, liberal education with a telos toward Truth, Goodness, and Beauty. - Curriculum: Seven Liberal Arts (Trivium/Quadrivium), Great Books, integrated history and Catholic truth. - Pedagogy: Socratic method, memorization/recitation, chanting, Schol -inspired contemplation, and rhetoric training. - Faculty: alignment with Catholic Magisterium; teachers as virtuous exemplars within a living curriculum. - Parents & Community: active partnership with families, parental formation opportunities, and open visitation.

ABSTRACT Regina Luminis Academy—CLASSICAL. The school's public materials and internal content present a coherent classical education model rooted in Catholic theology and Western intellectual tradition. It emphasizes formation (virtue, wisdom, moral imagination) over information delivery; a Trivium/Quadrivium-based curriculum with Great Books; Socratic pedagogy complemented by memory work and rhetoric; faculty aligned with Magisterial teaching; and a parental/community partnership model that aligns with classical norms. Across all six rubric categories, Regina Luminis Academy demonstrates the core markers of classical education, with no major counter-indicators in the materials analyzed. ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE DISCLAIMER

This audit was conducted using artificial intelligence tools (including large language models and automated web-analysis scripts) to evaluate the extent to which school websites reflect or incorporate recognized principles of classical education (e.g., the trivium, emphasis on truth/beauty/goodness, integration of great books, Latin/classical languages, Socratic method, rigorous academics, moral/character formation, etc.).

Important Limitations and Caveats

1. Automated Nature: The analysis relies on AI interpretation of publicly-accessible school website content as of the date of the audit. It does not involve direct contact with schools, review of internal documents, classroom observation, or verification of curriculum implementation beyond what is stated or implied on the website.
2. Probabilistic Results: Scores and assessments are probabilistic and reflect the AI's best interpretation of available text and site structure. They are not infallible and may miss nuance, context, or recent changes not yet reflected online.
3. Subjectivity of Classical Education: "Classical Education" encompasses a range of traditions and interpretations (e.g., Dorothy Sayers' trivium model, Classical Christian Education, Great Books programs, etc.). The Humanitas Institute Audit of the Six Elements of Classical Education uses a broad, consensus-based framework derived from prominent classical education organizations and thought leaders. Reasonable people may disagree on weighting or inclusion of specific criteria.
4. No Official Endorsement or Certification: Results do not constitute official endorsement, accreditation, or certification by any classical education organization. They are provided for informational and research purposes only.
5. Potential for Error: Websites may be incomplete, poorly worded, or temporarily inaccurate. Conversely, sophisticated marketing language may create false positives. Human review by parents, educators, or classical education experts is strongly recommended before drawing final conclusions about any school.
6. Data Privacy and Ethics: Only publicly available information was analyzed. No attempts were made to access password-protected areas or collect personal data.
7. No Liability: The authors, developers, and distributors of this audit assume no liability for decisions made on the basis of these results. Users are solely responsible for their own due diligence.

By reading or using this document, you acknowledge and accept the limitations described above.
